ABSTRACT

This study compiles summaries of the state legal standards governing public elementary and secondary education. The legal standards include state constitutional provisions, state statutory provisions, rules and regulations officially promulgated by either state boards of education or state departments of education, and less formal state administrative material. The summaries are organized by topic to facilitate cross-state comparison of the legal provisions in a variety of subject areas. The classification system has four main divisions. Section 1 concerns the distribution of powers, duties, and functions among educational officials, official bodies, and administrative units. Section 2 is divided into three categories: educational courses and programs, educational materials, and school property and facilities. Section 3 is concerned with the quality of the educational process and deals with such topics as accreditation, certification, and personnel evaluation. Section 4 concerns support services and other subjects collateral to, but often directly connected with, the educational process. Because the compilation uses summaries rather than full texts of the legal provisions, it cannot be used to determine the precise requirements of the law in any setting. (Author/IRT)

FOREWORD

A Compendium of State Legal Standards for the Provision of Public Education was prepared for the National Institute of Education by the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights Under Law. This work summarizes and categorizes the education laws and regulations of the fifty states and the District of Columbia. It is arranged into four major topic areas with an introductory section which explains the uses of this compilation and displays a number of important state laws in chart form. Users of the Compendium will find it necessary to read the introduction in order to effectively utilize the vast array of material contained in the study.

It is hoped that this compilation will meet a wide range of information needs of many educational policy makers, enhancing decision making and ultimately the quality of the educational process itself.

INTRODUCTION

This study compiles summaries of state legal standards governing public elementary and secondary education. The legal standards include state constitutional provisions, state statutory provisions, rules and regulations officially promulgated by either state boards of education or state departments of education and less formal state administrative material such as pamphlets and handbooks containing guidelines and interpretations of the statutory or regulatory provisions. We have included a list of the specific sources used to prepare the compilation.

The summarized legal provisions are organized by topic to facilitate cross-state comparison of the legal provisions in a variety of subject areas. In addition to the compilation of summarized texts, charts comparing specific aspects of laws on a number of education law topics have been prepared.

THE UTILITY AND LIMITATIONS OF THE COMPILATION

The major purpose of this compilation is to provide state policy makers (state legislators, state administrators, and others including interest groups who participate formally or informally in the state education policy making process) an overview of the range of policy options currently reflected in state law regarding basic aspects of the public elementary and secondary education systems. The compilation enables policy makers considering the enactment of legal standards on any given subject to obtain ideas for policy options by examining relevant laws and regulations implemented elsewhere in the nation.

Because the compilation utilizes summaries rather than the full texts of the legal provisions, the compilation cannot be utilized to determine the precise requirements of the law in any given setting. Indeed, not even the full texts of state legal standards provide a definitive picture of legal requirements in any given jurisdiction since the impact of federal requirements and court interpretations of both federal and state enactments must also be considered.

The compilation organizes the diverse standards of different jurisdictions into broadly defined topics for the purpose of facilitating cross comparison. Those whose interest is confined to the legal requirements of a single state would be best advised to consult that state's statutes, regulations, pamphlets and handbooks directly. The indices of individual state codes (i.e. published compilations of either state statutes or regulations) are much more detailed than the classification system we have used in organizing the study.

THE DESIGN OF THE COMPILATION

The fundamental principle governing the design of the compilation is the formulation of a simple subject outline of education law and the placement of legal standards from different states within the structure of that outline.

Summaries and Cross References

The reorganization of state legal standards in the manner employed in this compilation necessarily involves removing legal provisions from their contexts. This problem, inherent in all types of topical reorganizations of written material, is exacerbated in the case of state legal standards by the fact that some provisions discuss a variety of diverse subjects in a single paragraph.

We decided not to separate and relocate individual sentences from multi-subject paragraphs. Such extensive alteration of context, we felt, would have jeopardized understanding of the intended meaning.

Constitutions, statutes and regulations are divided into sections, usually of paragraph length, that are identified by discrete section numbers. Every summary included in the compilation covers at least a whole section. In placing summaries of multi-subject sections in the compilation, we attempted to determine the primary subject addressed by the provision and locate it accordingly, but in a few cases arbitrary placement decisions had to be made.

Nonetheless, all the provisions covering a particular subject can be easily located. Cross references indicate the locations of summaries which cover more than one subject. Thus, if a summary concerns both the school basic curriculum and textbooks, but is mostly concerned with curriculum, the summary is found in the compilation under Basic Curriculum. At the place in the compilation covering Textbooks, however, a cross reference to the curriculum location appears. The cross reference informs the user interested in textbooks that specific provisions classified under Basic Curriculum contain, as well, standards relating to textbooks.

Cross references must be checked to obtain all the provisions in the compilation related to a particular subject. Also, it would not be correct to presume that the "most important" textbook provisions are located under Textbooks while those located elsewhere according to the cross references are "less important."

In many cases the texts of the most important provisions on a given subject are not actually located in the portion of the compilation covering that subject; they are located elsewhere simply because the issuing authority chose to embed the provision in a discussion of other topics and dividing the discussion would have disturbed the immediate context of individual sentences. An alternative to cross references would have been to repeat the texts of summaries in many different locations; however, we decided against this approach since the compilation as it stands exceeds 7,000 pages.

"Black Dot" Provisions

In addition to the relevant cross references, there is a small number of provisions in Section I, indicated in the compilation by black dots, which must always be checked. The "black dot" provisions are those which assign to a particular official or official body a long list of specific powers, functions or duties. Cross references to these provisions have not been prepared simply because of the number that would be necessary (in some cases, as many as thirty for one summary). These provisions might concern any topic; hence, they must always be scanned as part of any systematic search for provisions relevant to a given subject area.

Key Word Notations

The primary means of retrieving information from the compilation is the classification and cross reference system; however, in the right hand margins of the compiled summaries we have included key word notations. Key word notations identify the locations of particular words or phrases appearing in the summaries. In selecting key word notations our goal was both to fill gaps in the conceptual coverage of the classification system and to elaborate a few of the details of that coverage.

For example, since the classification system focusses on substantive rights and duties of educational personnel rather than procedural rights, such words and phrases as notice, hearing, appeal, and due process were selected as key word notations to fill this conceptual gap and to assist in the identification of relevant procedural provisions (many of which are found in the portions of the compilation concerning education of exceptional children and those covering standards for professional discipline).

Examples of key word notations selected to elaborate details of concepts covered by the classification system are the names of specific courses (mathematics, health, physical education, drug education, history, etc.) that constitute the basic curriculum of different school systems.

We avoided selecting key word notations that reflect the central concepts and ideas of terms used in the classification system since the purpose of the notations is to supplement the classification system and facilitate location of concepts that might be difficult to find using the classification system alone. Thus, in the portion of the compilation covering qualification standards for personnel, most of the provisions apply to either teachers, teacher aides, administrators, or counselors. Interspersed among the majority of provisions, however, are those few that apply to other educational personnel. To facilitate identification of these latter provisions such terms as psychologist, nurse, and social worker were selected as key word notations.

Degree of Summarization and Subject Limitations

In preparing the compilation, we focused on the fundamental educational functions of the public schools and this is reflected in the extent to which different provisions were summarized. Provisions concerning auxiliary functions and attributes of the schools were summarized to a greater degree than provisions addressing matters falling at the heart of the educational process. Statutes and regulations concerning building maintenance, for example, were summarized more extensively than those concerning courses, books, or teacher qualifications. Many important education law provisions were reproduced verbatim.

In addition to extensively summarizing some provisions, we excluded altogether from the compilation a number of specific subjects. School finance provisions were omitted, despite their obvious significance, as understanding their import requires specialized expertise and simultaneous consideration of finance data not found in the laws themselves. Provisions concerning unique means of classifying school districts according to size were omitted, since they are premised on unique local conditions and their value as policy models is, thus, diminished.

While provisions concerning the role of teachers and administrators as educators are included in the compilation (and, indeed, are among the most important entries in the compilation), provisions concerning the role of teachers and administrators as employees of school systems--provisions concerning collective bargaining, salaries, pensions plans and similar matters--are not included in the compilation, since the focus of the study is on legal standards which govern the educational process, itself. To be sure, collective bargaining laws affect educational policy making as well as individual employee rights. However, collective bargaining laws have nonetheless been excluded from the compilation because a number of other compilations and analyses of these laws are already available.

Provisions concerning details of school board election procedures, provisions concerning bonding of officials, and a number of other miscellaneous subjects found in some education codes were omitted as they are tangential to the focus of the compilation.

In preparing the compilation our systematic search efforts were limited to the education codes (statutes and regulations) of the states and pamphlets and handbooks prepared by state education officials. Laws which apply to the schools simply because they apply to all public agencies were not systematically included in the compilation unless they actually appear in the volume of statutes or regulations specifically designated as the education code. For example, a number of states have open meeting laws which apply to all public agencies, including school boards. These laws are frequently found in statutory volumes other than the education code. Where we encountered information that led us to discover such laws we included them in the compilation. However, we did not systematically search statutory volumes other than the officially designated state education codes.

Interstate Agreements

A number of states have enacted either the Interstate Agreement on Qualification of Educational Personnel or the Interstate Compact for Education, or both. These laws appear once in the compilation (just before Section I) with a list of the states that have passed them.

How to Use the Compilation

The compilation is intended for users desiring an overview of the spectrum of ideas and options found in existing state legal standards governing public elementary and secondary education. The concepts utilized in the classification system are explained below. After examining the classification system and turning to the portion of the compilation covering the specific area of interest, the user may employ the key word notations as an additional aid to locating relevant provisions, and should always check the cross references and the "black dot" provisions. If the subject of interest is covered by the summary charts which follow this introduction these charts can be used to obtain cross comparisons of specific aspects of legal provisions governing the designated subject areas.

THE CLASSIFICATION SYSTEM

The classification system has four main divisions, Sections I through IV. Section I concerns the distribution of powers, duties and functions among education officials, official bodies and administrative units. Section I is divided into categories consisting of the names or titles of officials, official bodies, and administrative units that are assigned powers, functions, or duties under the law. For example, under the Category County Superintendent in Section I summaries (and cross references to summaries) which identify the powers, duties and functions of county superintendents are found.

Section I includes many cross references since most provisions are located elsewhere in the compilation For example, a provision granting county superintendents authority to determine the basic curriculum of the county schools would normally be placed in the portion of Section II concerning curriculum while a cross reference would be placed under the Category County Superintendent under Section I. Summaries actually located in Section I are those which either concern generally phrased powers, duties, and functions, assign a long list of specific duties to an official or official body (these provisions are designated by black dots), or discuss one or a few specific functions which are not the concern of any other portions of the classification system.

The categories under Section I are not uniform among the states since the phrases used are drawn directly from the education provisions which, of course, vary in their terminology from jurisdiction to jurisdiction. As an additional aid to understanding the different educational governance structures of the states, Section I also includes introductory comments that provide for each jurisdiction an overview of the organization of the education system.

While Section I of the compilation is designed to answer questions concerning "who" in the education system, Section II concerns questions asking "What?" Section II, entitled Programs, Materials, and Facilities, is divided into three categories: Educational Courses and Programs, Educational Materials, and School Property and Facilities. Category A constitutes the bulk of this section and concerns essentially the diverse curricula offered by the public schools. Category A under Section II is divided into ten topics. The first is entitled Basic Curriculum and covers the courses (including courses such as driver training) that are designed for the vast majority of students. Topics 2 through 9 under Category A of Section II concern, respectively: Programs for Exceptional Children; Vocational Education; Early Childhood Education; Bilingual/Bicultural Education; Compensatory Education; Schools for Delinquents; Adult Education; and Summer Programs. The tenth topic, unlike the previous nine, varies from state to state and is used as the location for provisions governing programs which are unique to individual states or found in only relatively few states--Indian education programs, nautical schools, innovative programs, and experimental programs.

Category B of Section II covers Educational Materials, including Textbooks, Audiovisual Education, School Libraries, and Supplies and Equipment. Category C under Section II concerns School Property and Facilities and is divided into three topics, School Site, Physical Plant and Fixtures and Use of Facilities. (This last topic concerns such provisions as those authorizing school boards to grant community groups authority to utilize school property during nonschool hours.) The provisions falling within Category C of Section II have generally been substantially summarized as they are of less central concern to the compilation than those in Categories A and B.

If Sections I and II can be described as concerning, respectively, "who" and "what" questions regarding the education systems of the states, Section III concerns the question"How well?" Section III, entitled Quality of the Educational Process, is divided into five categories. The first two categories concern the basic qualification standards which must be met in order for schools to provide instructional services in compliance with the law. The first category, Qualification Standards for Schools and School Districts, has two topics, Accreditation and Other Qualification Standards. Formal accreditation standards are included under the former while specific provisions (such as those mandating teacher-pupil ratios for certain courses) having consequences similar to those of accreditation standards are placed under Topic 2.

Category B under Section IIIconcerns Qualification Standards for Personnel. For the most part, these are the certification requirements which educational personnel must meet in order to qualify for their positions in the education system. Topics under Category B are the titles of officials who must meet the particular qualification standards in question.

Category C under Section III is entitled Performance Standards. This category embraces such matters as the commands of state constitutions that legislatures provide "thorough and efficient" systems of education as well as specific graduation standards which students must meet in order to receive their diplomas. Topics under Category C are the titles of educational personnel or administrative units (principal, teacher, superintendent, student, school board, school system, school district, etc.) that must meet performance standards in their work or studies. With respect to teachers, for example, Category C under Section III covers the standards established for dismissal of tenured faculty and the procedures involved in determining whether individual teachers undergoing termination proceedings have met the performance standards necessary to retain their jobs.

Category D under Section III concerns Evaluation and Reporting. Topics under this category are the person, entities or activities evaluated, or the subjects of reporting activities. Provisions concerning testing of students and evaluation of teachers are located here.

Category E under Section III is entitled Improvement Efforts and it embraces such subjects as inservice training of teachers and any other direct efforts taken to improve the quality of the education process. Topics under Category E are the titles of persons or entities whose performance is sought to be improved.

Section IV of the compilation concerns support services and other subjects collateral to, but often directly connected with, the educational process. The categories under Section IV include a variety of specific topics: Health and Safety; Counseling; School Food Service; Transportation; Extracurricular Activities; Students Records; Admission and Transfer; Attendance Requirements; Student Employment; Student Rights and Discipline; and Parents' Rights.

The pages of the compilation are numbered in the upper right corners according to a system which facilitates retrieval of information by state. These numbers identify pages by classification designation, state, and sequential order within that part of the compilation. Thus, IIA2-TX 3 refers to the third page of the Texas summaries found in Section II, Category A, Topic 2 (Programs for Exceptional Children).

ADMISSION REQUIREMENTS

In most states admission requirements are dealt with by regulation as well as statute. Most states require that a child reach the age of five before she/he may be admitted to kindergarten and six before admission to the first grade. The date for attaining the required age may vary from as early as September 1 to as late as January 1. Most states use the same cutoff date for each of the two grade levels.

Approximately one-third of the states allow for exceptions to either the age or date requirement for the two grade levels. These exceptions are generally based on specific state or local criteria.

A further prerequisite for admission in about half of the states is that the child undergo a medical examination or be immunized against contagious diseases. In states where such requirements are discretionary, the district or local board may decide on medical examinations or immunizations. Almost all states with this requirement allow it to be waived if the parents object for religious reasons.

The difference between an admission and an attendance requirement should be noted. The responsibility for carrying out the admission statute lies with the state, but may be delegated to the local board. Thus, the schools must, with certain specific exceptions, admit students to kindergarten or first grade if they meet the minimum age requirements. Under the compulsory attendance statutes, the responsibility is placed upon the parent or guardian to insure the child attends class. Usually the age requirement for attendance is higher than that for admission and a parent or guardian is not obligated to send their child to school until the compulsory attendance age is reached.

ADULT EDUCATION

Nearly all states have statutes and/or regulations that allow school districts to offer adult education programs. In some states, however, adult education programs are offered only if a certain number of applicants or petitioners request such a course.

There are four general categories of course offerings in Adult Education. They are high school equivalency, continuing education, basic skills, and citizenship training. In more than half the states, school districts offer high school equivalency programs enabling students to earn a high school diploma at the discretion of the district. In only nine states are these programs mandatory. Continuing education enrichment courses, if offered, are generally discretionary.

Basic skills programs, offering elementary courses in reading and writing English, are customarily found in border states and states with large urban populations. Only five states require citizenship programs.

ATTENDANCE ENFORCEMENT AGENT

Almost every state has statutory requirements relating to the enforcement of attendance laws. With few exceptions the entire responsibility for enforcing attendance laws rests with the district school board. Most states require that the district board appoint an attendance officer or supervisor to manage the district's attendance records and investigate any cases of unexcused absence.

In keeping with the general emphasis on local decision-making in this area, the district boards in most states determine the number of attendance officers to be employed and sets their salary. However, a few states have established requirements for the number of attendance officers to be based on the total population of the school district.

Many state codes detail the process an attendance officer must adhere to in enforcing the laws. A typical sequence follows these lines. If a pupil has been absent for several days without excuse, the officer must conduct a general inquiry to determine the cause of the absence. If the officer determines that the pupil's absence is unjustified, she/he must send a notice to the child's parents ordering them to comply with attendance laws. If this approach does not work, the officer must then take the child into custody or report the case to the state's attorney for prosecution.

ATTENDANCE REQUIREMENTS

In most states children from the ages of seven to sixteen are required to attend school. However, some states require attendance beginning with age six and others require attendance to continue until age eighteen.

In some states children from the ages of five to twenty-one are permitted to attend school. In a few states there are statutes enabling the district board to admit persons over twenty-one. In these situations the district board usually must make a determination that the older person will not have a disruptive effect on the education of the other children. In addition this person is generally required to pay tuition although some states will waive this requirement if the student is a veteran. It should be noted that these age requirements for compulsory and permitted attendance apply only to the regular classroom programs. Other programs such as special education, adult education or vocational education may have different requirements.

All states have statutes that permit certain students to be exempt from the compulsory attendance requirements. Generally these statutes are guidelines from which the district board is to develop its own regulations. Before any exemption is granted, the parent or guardian typically must appear at a hearing and demonstrate to the satisfaction of the board the claim is valid.

There is a great range of factors that will exempt a child from compulsory attendance. In some states there are as many as a dozen conditions that will provide an exemption. Almost all states will exempt a child if she/he has completed satisfactory work at a certain grade level (usually the eighth) and reached a certain age, or she/he is legally employed under the state's child labor laws. Frequently, child labor laws combine an age requirement with a grade completion requirement. Occasionally the child must also be necessary for the support of the family before she/he can be exempt.

Almost all states provide an exemption for a child who is mentally retarded or physically handicapped. However, these exemptions do not imply that the state does not provide a program of special education or require handicapped children to attend.

Only one state, California, will allow a person to be exempt if she/he passes an examination showing that she/he is achieving on a certain grade level. A few states allow a child to be exempt from compulsory attendance if she/he lives a great distance from the school and no transportation is available. Of those states that provide a distance exemption some apply it only to children in elementary grades and some require the student to complete correspondence courses.

For information on the enforcement of these attendance laws see the chart and analysis on Attendance Enforcement which follows.

Description of Column Headings for Chart on Attendance Requirements

Compulsory Attendance - During these years (inclusive) a child must attend school.

Attendance Permitted - During these years (inclusive) a child may attend school on a tuition-free basis. (See chart on Admission Requirements for related provisions.)

Basis for Exemption

1) Employment at Age - A child is exempt from attendance requirements if she/he is legally employed at a certain age.

2) Grade Completed - If she/he has completed a certain grade, a child can be exempt.

3) Local Decision - A mark in this column indicates that the district board or other local authority has some discretionary latitude in choosing to exempt certain pupils who might not be exempt under state guidelines.

A,B) Mental Condition, Handicapped - These columns indicate exemptions for those children whose mental or physical condition prevents their being placed in regular or special education programs. It is customary that this exemption be granted only after a licensed physician or qualified psychologist has certified that the child would not benefit from any education program the state offers.

C) Court Decision - A decision by a juvenile court can exempt a child.

D) Academic Equivalency Test - A child is exempt if she/he achieves a certain score on a standard test.

E) Alternate Equivalent Education - This column covers education in private or parochial schools or by a private tutor.

F) Chronic Ill Health - Ill health could exempt a child from meeting the minimum annual attendance requirements, or it could exempt her/him from attendance altogether.

G) Great Distance - If a child must walk a great distance to the nearest school or bus route and no other transportation is available, then the child is exempt. The distance can be as short as a mile and a half. In some states this exemption applies only to children in elementary school.

H) Parental Objection - If approved by the district board of superintendent, a parent's objection can exempt a child.

I) Other - This column covers other general exemptions.

CURRICULUM

In all states the local school district must offer a curriculum prescribed by the state. The degree of control exercised by the education agency differs from state to state. In most states a local district must offer the curriculum devised by the state. In those states where districts retain some discretion, course offerings must still be chosen within state guidelines. Oftentimes the guideline is a specific legal requirement that the district must observe; for example, all schools must offer courses in American history and government. The statutes of nearly all states contain such requirements. In states where the choice of course offerings is left to the district, it is often limited by state board guidelines regulating the number, content, or quality of the courses.

Some states provide that a district must offer a specified number of courses. These directives of the state education agency are usually requirements for accreditation. Sanctions for noncompliance could include nonrecognition of the district or school and/or loss of state aid.

Description of Headings for Chart on Curriculum

Local Selection of Curriculum - the local district selects its curriculum offerings on the basis of the extent of authority delegated by the state.

1) Determined by State - The state decides the requirements for curriculum in the public schools. It acts through its legally constituted executive authority (usually the State Board of Education) or through an independent committee established to make decisions on curriculum.

2) Within State Guidelines - The state promulgates guidelines which the district must follow when it selects its curriculum.

Program Specifications

1) Minimum Number of Required Courses - The school must offer the stated number of required courses to comply with the standard.

2) Minimum Number of Electives- The school must offer the stated number of elective courses to comply with the standard.

3) Requirement for Accreditation - A school must offer the required number and subject matter of courses in order to receive or maintain its accreditation status.

4) Bilingual Education - The school program makes provision for bilingual education. Such programs are either mandatory (M) or discretionary (D).

Sanctions for Noncompliance - The local district faces loss of aid or accreditation status if it fails to comply with state standards or devise satisfactory course offerings of its own.

Curriculum - footnotes

(a) Massachusetts - on request of parent or guardian.

(b) Michigan - if guidelines for implementation are met.

(c) Minnesota - school submits detailed outlines for which curriculum guides are not available to commissioner.

(d) Rhode Island - mandatory if 20 or more pupils register for it.

(e) District of Columbia - Superintendent of Schools.

EXTRACURRICULAR ACTIVITIES

Extracurricular activities cover a wide range of nonacademic pursuits including such items as school organizations and athletic contests. In some states school districts are required to offer a program of extracurricular activities in elementary and/or secondary schools. This requirement is often one of the prerequisites to accreditation. A state education agency's requirements for extracurricular activities usually contains a general statement encouraging the school district to ensure broad student participation by providing a balanced program of activities.

Only a few states provide detailed regulations concerning minimum program specifications. Two states, Iowa and Kansas, require that each district submit its plan for extracurricular activities to the state education agency for approval. The activity most commonly subject to state regulations is participation in athletic events. In addition, many state legislatures have prohibited schools from allowing any secret societies or organizations.

Description of Headings for Chart on Extracurricular Activities

District Must Provide - The state requires that each district or school provide a program of extracurricular activities for elementary (E) or secondary (S) schools.

Detailed State Regulations - The state sets forth detailed requirements for a district or school's extracurricular activities.

State Approval Required - The state assumes a supervisory role for each district or school's extracurricular activities. The state may require that each activity be registered or its program content be approved.

Regulations for Athletic Competition - The state establishes certain guidelines for interscholastic contests. These guidelines might include requirements for game scheduling, transportation, insurance for players, etc.

Secret Societies Prohibited - The state prohibits any school from setting up any secret society or organization.

District Must Provide Facilities for Public Purposes - The state requires that the district allow school facilities to be used at the request of the community.

No Provision - The state has established no requirements for extracurricular activities.

Extracurricular Activities - footnotes

(a) New York - the Board of Education of each school district having a population of less than one million as well as an educational program beyond the sixth grade level shall make such regulations.

(b) New York - district board may prohibit.

(c) South Carolina - regulations for transportation to extracurricular activities.

GRADE ORGANIZATION

Over three-fourths of the states have some provisions regarding grade organization. Among these states which deal with grade organization, about half do so through statutes and the rest by regulation. Some states use both.

In most states grade organization is decided by the local school board. This decision may be based on state guidelines for grade organization or it may be subject to the state education agency's approval. In Illinois, grade organization is entirely a local option.

In a majority of states, the local board determines the grade organization for the district based on the state's guidelines. These state guidelines will usually provide a variety of grade organizations from which the local agency may choose. A few states with established guidelines allow the local boards the option to choose a grade organization other than those recommended by the state. However, before adopting such a grade organization, the local board must obtain the approval of the state education agency.

Description of Headings for Chart on Grade Organization

Statute or Regulation - Grade organization requirements are covered by statutes (S) and/or regulations (R)

State Decisions - The state decides the grade organization for all district schools.

Local Decision

1) Within State Guidelines - A district chooses its grade organization from recommended patterns established by the state.

2) Upon State Approval - A district must obtain state approval before it adopts a grade organization which is not among the recommended patterns.

3) No State Restrictions - A district is free to adopt any grade organization.

GUIDANCE AND COUNSELING PROGRAM

Most state education agencies have established regulations concerning guidance and counseling programs for school districts. A guidance program is usually designed to assess and support the individual student's academic, social and vocational needs. In many states both elementary and secondary schools must have a guidance program before they can become accredited, although some states require that only secondary schools have such a program.

Frequently the state establishes a pupil-to-staff ratio as part of the accreditation requirements. The average ratio for these states is approximately 450 students to each full-time counselor in secondary schools and 600 students to each counselor in elementary schools. Many states require that guidance personnel be certificated. (For greater detail see chart on Certification Requirements by Job Title.)

Normally, a state education agency which requires schools to have a guidance program will also establish requirements specifying the types of services that must be made available in the program. Only a few states do not set any program requirements. Approximately one-third of the state education agencies require the school districts to establish a testing program and keep records of students' progress. Many state's regulations specify that any guidance program must provide persons who are trained in giving career counseling. Only a few states require that guidance programs provide a guidance library for student use. Nine states require that the school or school district employ a staff psychologist.

Description of Headings for Chart on Guidance and Counseling Program

Statute or Regulation - Guidance and counseling requirements specified on this chart are covered by statutes (S) and/or regulations (R).

District Must Provide - The state requires (M) or recommends (D) that each school district provide a guidance program.

Requirement for Accreditation - Elementary or secondary schools must have a guidance and counseling program before they can be accredited.

Staff Requirements

1) Mandatory Certification - Any school with a guidance program must employ certificated counselors.
2) Students/full-time Counselors - Elementary and secondary schools must adhere to a certain ratio of students to each counselor. For states with different levels of accreditation the student to counselor ratio varies with each such level.

Program Specifications

1) State Approval - A school submits a plan for its guidance program to the state education agency before the program can be adopted.
2) Testing Program - The counseling office administers standard intelligence tests, reading tests, or other aptitude tests.
3) Cumulative Records - The counseling office keeps test scores, grades and other pertinent information that can be used to assess the progress of the individual student.
4) Career Guidance - The counseling office is equipped to provide career guidance.
5) Guidance Library - A guidance library is available for student use.
6) Provisions for a Psychologist - As a part of the guidance program the school may employ a staff psychologist.
7) Other - The state sets other program specifications.

Guidance and Counseling Program - footnotes

(a) California - mandatory guidance program only for continuation educational programs.

(b) Connecticut - vocational guidance

HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

Normally it is the state education agency that specifies the number of credits needed for graduation from high school. Most states require that a student earn between 16 and 18 credits. State that have organized their high schools to include only grades 10 through 12 require completion of a lower number of credits for graduation. In some states students must pass a standardized test in addition to achieving the required credits. Four states, in regulating graduation requirements, give their local board the discretion of adding courses or credit requirements in addition to those set forth in the statute.

Description of Headings for Chart on High School Graduation Requirements

Total Credits Required - A pupil must earn a certain number of credits before he can graduate.

Total Electives - Of the number of credits required for graduation, a certain number is elective.

Pass Standardized Test - The state requires that the pupil pass a standardized test before she/he is awarded a diploma.

Local Requirements Option - The district board may impose additional requirements for graduation.

High School Graduation Requirements - footnotes

(a) Colorado - 18 units in 4-year schools; 14 units in grades 10 through 12.

(b) Colorado - tests may be given at the discretion of school district boards.

(c) Maryland - high school graduation requirements are located in Principles and Standards: Public Secondary Education in Maryland, not received before the publication of this study.

(d) Minnesota - at the discretion of the state board.

(e) New Jersey - credits calculated in semester hours.

(f) Utah - credits must be earned in grades 10 through 12.

INDIVIDUAL PUPIL RECORDS

In every state, either the state legislature or the department of education has developed provisions pertaining to the maintenance of records on individual pupils. Customarily, a state statute will mandate each school to collect records and will authorize the state education agency to develop regulations concerning those records. Those regulations cover a wide range of administrative areas, such as what the records shall contain, who shall keep the records, and who has access to them.

In general, most states require that a pupil's records contain biographical and attendance information. Over half the states also require that a pupil's records contain the results of aptitude tests and health examinations. In addition, many states permit the local record-keeping agency to establish other categories of information that may be kept for each pupil.

In most cases, the school has responsibility for maintaining record files; however, some states place that responsibility on the school district.

Almost all the state education agencies have developed regulations concerning access to a pupil's records. Many states permit both the student and her/his parents to inspect the records. Some states go a step further and grant the student or her/his parents discretionary authority over who may see the records. A few states have regulations specifically granting records access to any law enforcement agency or investigative body.

Many of the states have established regulations covering the permanence of records. Often a state will require that a copy of records be transferred with a student who moves to another school district.

Description of Headings for Chart on Individual Pupil Records

Statute and/or Regulation - The state requires that the school keep individual pupil records by statute and/or regulation.

Contents of Records

1) Biographical - This category included basic biographical information such as age, address, etc.

2) Attendance - This category includes a record of each pupil's attendance.

3) Testing - Testing information includes records of scores on intelligence and aptitude tests.

4) Health - Health records include information on school-conducted examinations, immunizations, infirmary visits, etc.

5) Local Discretion - The state explicitly grants the district the discretion to keep additional information.

Custodian of Records - The state requires that the district office and/or each school shall keep copies of each pupil's record.

Access to Records - These columns indicate both who has access to records and who controls access to records.

1) Discretion of: Local School - The local school determines who can see a pupils record. Parent - Student - An X indicates that a parent or pupil has discretion over who sees the records.

2) All Interested Persons - All interested persons have access to a pupil's records.

3) Professional Staff - The professional staff (teachers and administrators) has access to a pupil's records.

4) Law Enforcement Agency - The state requires that the school release records to a law enforcement agency.

5) Confidentiality Provisions - The state either requires that certain information remain confidential or requires that the district board develop regulations concerning confidentiality.

Permanence of Records

1) Mandatory Updating - A school or district must update all pupil information.

2) Provisions for Correction - Some mechanism is provided whereby a pupil's records can be corrected if they contain errors.

3) Copy of Records Transferred - If a pupil transfers to another school, district, or state, the school must forward copies of her/his records.

4) Files Destroyed - The state requires that a pupil's records be destroyed a certain number of years after a pupil's graduation or transfer to another school.

5) Kept Indefinitely - The state requires that pupil records be kept indefinitely.

IN-SERVICE TRAINING

In most of the states that have in-service training programs, the training takes place at the district level. Most of the states have developed statutes and/or regulations dealing with training programs. However, this figure is deceptive since many of these district programs apply to teachers in certain subject areas only. The net result is that very few states have a broad and well-developed program of in-service training.

Although some states have a defined training program, only a few discuss teachers' attendance requirements at these programs. In only a very few states are there regulations requiring all teachers to attend training sessions. In two states the district board selects the teachers who must attend a training session.

Description of Headings for Chart on In-Service Training

Statutory Requirements for In-Service Training - The legislature requires that the state education agency or the district provide in-service training.

Annual District Conference - The state requires that each district sponsor an annual training conference which is customarily held at the beginning of each school year.

District Must Provide Training - Besides the annual conference, the State requires that the district provide other in-service training.

District Selects Teachers for Training - When a district sets up a training program, the district also selects those teachers who must participate in the training.

All Teachers Must Attend Training - When a district sets up a training program, all teachers must attend.

In-Service Training - footnotes

(a) Arizona - State Board of Education provides training at the request of the school district.

(b) Arkansas, Louisiana, Wyoming - in-service training for special education programs.

(c) Connecticut - in-service training for alcohol and drug education program.

(d) Idaho - district school board may establish requirements.

(e) Iowa - determined by the education agency administration.

(f) Mississippi - The school district shall have a policy which ensures continuous professional growth for all teachers.

(g) New Mexico - provided by district with state approval.

(h) New Mexico - degree credit allowable to teachers that participate.

LIBRARIES

Almost all states have established some requirements concerning school libraries. Most state education agencies require that each elementary and secondary school have a library as a part of its educational resources. A few states require libraries only in schools which exceed a certain enrollment. Some states do not require elementary schools to maintain libraries and place requirements only at the secondary school level. Many states which have library requirements also require that those libraries be staffed by certificated librarians.

Several states have set up minimum standards for each library's book collection. These state regulations will normally specify both a minimum collection requirement and a minimum per pupil requirement. These two minimum requirements generally vary with the size of the school so that the larger the school's enrollment, the larger its book collection requirements.

Several states have established standards for the library's acquisitions. State acquisition standards usually require that each library have a certain distribution of books in its minimum collection, that is, a certain percentage should be reference works, fiction titles, nonfiction titles, and so on. A few state standards are of such detail as to require specific book titles.

Besides these book collection requirements many states have regulations requiring school libraries to acquire and maintain other specific items. Many states require the library collection to include a special number of magazine and newspaper subscriptions. These same states also require that libraries possess instructional aides such as audio-visual equipment. Ten states specify the floor space to be utilized for school libraries.

To ensure for the continued maintenance of school libraries, several states have set minimum annual expenditure requirements for libraries.

Description of Headings for Chart on Libraries

School Libraries Mandatory

1) By School - The state requires that each elementary school (E) and/or each secondary school (S) provide library services.

2) By District - The state requires that each district provide library services.

State Must Prescribe Regulations - The legislature requires by statute that the state education agency prescribe regulations concerning the use and availability of libraries.

Required Book Collection in Secondary Schools

1) Minimum per School - A school is required to have a certain minimum number of books in its collection.

2) Minimum per Pupil - A library is required to have a certain minimum number of books per pupil.

3) State Acquisition Requirements - The state establishes requirements for the acquisition of book collections. These requirements usually include a list of essential reference works and distribution requirements for types of books.

Other Requirements

1) Trained Librarian - Elementary schools (E) and/or secondary schools (S) are required to have a certificated librarian.

2) Nonbook Collection - The state establishes requirements for instructional materials other than books, such as periodicals and newspapers.

3) Instructional Equipment - The state establishes requirements for instructional equipment such as audio-visual equipment.

4) Space - The state educational agency establishes requirements for library space.

Minimum Annual Expenditure - A school or district must meet certain minimum annual expenditure requirements.

Libraries - footnotes

(a) Arkansas, Missouri, Montana, New York, Vermont - varies with school size.

(b) Louisiana - Bulletin 1134 concerning library materials not received before the publication of this study.

(c) Maryland - further information on libraries to be found in "The Maryland State Plan for Making Available School Library Resources and Other Instructional Materials", not received before the publication of this study.

(d) New Jersey - library facilities shall be "adequate".

(e) South Carolina - number of volumes per pupil varies with class designation: Grades 1 through 3, ten volumes; Grades 4 through 8, eight volumes; Grades 9 through 12, six volumes.

PROMOTION REQUIREMENTS

Very few states have developed promotion requirements. In those that have requirements, most are found in regulations rather than statutes. Of the states that have requirements only one has quantifiable criteria for promotion. In some other states the promotion requirements are based on a more subjective standard.

Description of Headings for Chart on Promotion Requirements

Statute or Regulation - Statutes (S) and /or regulations (R) cover the state's promotion requirements.

Minimum Attendance - A student must attend school a certain number of days during a calendar year if she/he is to be promoted.

Pass Standardized Test - The state requires that a student pass a standardized test before she/he is promoted.

Other - Some states have additional requirements which are specified in a footnote.

Promotion Requirements - footnotes

(a) Colorado, Massachusetts - county board shall determine.

(b) Oregon - may be locally determined

PUPIL LOAD - CLASS SIZE
FOR AN INDIVIDUAL TEACHER

The pupil load requirements place a maximum ceiling on the number of hours a teacher may be required to conduct class, and/or sets a maximum on the number of pupils a teacher can be required to supervise. In many states this is a topic for collective bargaining. In those states which have set standards regulating the maximum teaching schedule, a teacher would normally be expected to conduct five classes per day with approximately one additional hour for preparation. In most instances a teacher would be required to supervise 150 students, but some place the maximum number at 180 students.

Individual class size varies from 27 to 35 students with the norm being 30. Most states which regulate class size make exceptions for specialized instruction, such as music, typing and physical education, where individualized instruction may be either more or less important.

Description of Headings for Chart on Pupil Load - Class Size for An Individual Teacher

Maximum Teaching Schedule - The state sets a limit on the number of hours a teacher is permitted to teach each week.

Teacher's Maximum Pupil Load - The state sets a limit on the number of pupils a teacher is to teach each day.

Class Size in Secondary School

1) Maximum - The number of pupils in a regular or laboratory classroom may not exceed a certain number.

2) Minimum - No class may have an enrollment of fewer than a certain number of students.

Size Requirements for Multi-grade Classrooms - The state sets forth size requirements for classrooms that contain more than one grade level.

Pupil Load - Class Size - footnotes

(a) California - a full-time speech and hearing teacher of handicapped minors shall teach no more than 90 such pupils in one week.

(b) Connecticut - class size for teachers in special education varies from 8 to 18 students.

(c) Massachusetts - class size for kindergarten is 25 students.

(d) Minnesota - maximum assignment is five periods of a six-period day or six periods of a seven or eight period day.

(e) Minnesota - average pupils per day, per teacher, per week.

(f) New Jersey - class size shall be "reasonably limited" for teacher to attend to the individual needs of students.

(g) Vermont - except in English when limit is 100.

PUPIL-TEACHER RATIO FOR GRADES, SCHOOLS AND DISTRICTS

The pupil-teacher ratio refers to the minimum number of teachers in a grade school or district, in relation to the number of students. In some states this ratio is a condition for receiving and maintaining accreditation status. Schools and/or districts that fail to observe the requirement would lose recognition by the state education agency, since the ratio is frequently an express prerequisite for state aid.

Usually the statute and/or regulation will explain how the number of students and teachers is to be determined. The method most often resembles the formula used for calculating state aid; thus the number of students used in determining the ratio is based on the average daily attendance (ADA), the average daily membership (ADM), or the total enrollment (TE). Most states use the total enrollment of students to compute the pupil-teacher ratio. Nearly all states consider the full-time certified staff as the basis for determining the number of teachers.

The pupil-teacher ratio may vary in relation to the grade level. While most states require more teachers per student population in the lower grade levels, there are several states in which the reverse is true. In most states the average ratio is between 25:1 and 30:1. The range varies from 19 to 35 students per teacher.

Description of Headings for Chart on Pupil-Teacher Ratio

Statute or Regulation - Pupil-teacher ratio requirements are covered by statutes (S) and/or regulations (R).

Local Discretion - The local district board establishes the pupil-teacher ratio.

Accreditation Requirement - A school must meet pupil-teacher ratio requirements before it is accredited.

Pupils Counted - The number of students used in calculating the ratio is based on the average daily attendance (ADA), the average daily membership (ADM), or the total enrollment (TE).

Teachers Counted - The number of teachers used in calculating the ratio is based on the number of full-time certificated staff members or the equivalent thereof.

Ratios - Each grade level must adhere to a specific pupil-teacher ratio. The figure indicates the number of students per full-time teacher. The number and/or letter before the colon indicates the grade levels; the number after the colon indicates the class size.

Pupil-Teacher Ratio for Grades, Schools and Districts - footnotes

(a) Colorado - ratio for bilingual and bicultural programs; 1-3:28; K:25.

(b) Minnesota, Vermont - See "Pupil Load - Class Size" chart for similar requirements.

(c) New Jersey - ratio should be kept at a level to provide opportunity for "a reasonable amount of attention by the teachers to the individual needs of pupils."

(d) Washington - provision for the computation of ratios exists, but is too complicated to express in chart form. See citations in Appendix O.

PUPIL TRANSPORTATION

In almost all states the responsibility for providing transportation rests with the local school districts. This responsibility may be either mandatory or discretionary. If the requirement is mandatory, the district must either provide transportation for all pupils, or provide transportation only to those pupils living a certain distance from school. Similarly, if the provision is discretionary, either the district has total discretion to provide pupil transportation or it has discretion to provide transportation only to pupils living a certain distance from school. Although states usually reimburse school districts for the cost of transportating students, it will not provide reimbursement when the school district exceeds the "discretionary distance" outlined by the state.

Transportation distance criteria vary considerably from state to state. A few states set different distance standards for elementary and secondary schools. Generally, in this situation secondary school students must live farther from school than elementary school students before the district is required to provide transportation. Only a small number of states require districts to provide pupil transportation without prescribing specific distance requirements.

In all states the actual routing of school buses is a task left to the local districts, although almost half the state education agencies have formulated specific regulations to be used as guidelines in developing bus routes. A few state education agencies have passed regulations which not only guide the district in drawing the routes, but also require that the district submit the route plans to the state agency for approval

In most instances state education agencies have developed thorough regulations concerning bus equipment. Some states have compiled their regulations for bus and safety equipment into booklets of more than a hundred pages. These regulations invariably follow standards suggested by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

More than half the states have placed requirements for school bus inspections in the school code, and it is probable that in the remaining states these provisions may be found elsewhere in the state code. Most of the states have requirements for bus driver's qualifications such as a certificate or a special license.

Description of Headings for Chart on Pupil Transportation

Mandatory - Either the state unconditionally requires that the district provide pupil transportation, or the state requires that the district provide transportation to pupils if they live a certain number of miles from school.

Discretionary - The district may have total discretion in providing pupil transportation or it may have discretion to provide transportation only to pupils who live a certain number of miles from school.

State Regulations of Bus Routes - The state regulates certain aspects of bus routes such as maximum length of route, length of walk to bus, etc.

Equipment

1) Detailed Specifications - The state provides detailed specifications for buses on such items as seating, capacity, windows, etc.

2) Inspection - The state requires a periodic inspection of school buses.

Bus Drivers

1) Chauffeur's License - Before a person can driver a school bus, she/he must have a chauffeur's license.

2) Certificate Required - Before a person can driver a school bus, she/he must have the qualifications necessary to obtain a school bus driver's certificate.

Pupil Transportation - footnotes

(a) California - for pupils attending Kindergarten or grades 1, 2, 3 -- 3/4 mile; for pupils in grades 4 through 9 -- 1 mile; grades 10 through 12 -- 2 miles.

(b) Colorado - pretrip vehicle inspection.

(c) Florida - Further transportation information available in Bulletin 1191, not received before publication of this study.

(d) Maine - school directors determine distance.

(e) Maryland - statute provides for the state to pay for the necessary cost of transportation for junior and senior high school pupils who live 1-1/2 miles or more from school, and all other pupils who live 1 miles or more from school.

(f) Missouri - drivers transportating ten or more pupils.

(g) Nevada - whatever distance deemed "necessary and desirable".

(h) New Mexico - 1 mile, one way, for grades K-6, 1-1/2 miles one way for grades 7-9; 2 miles one way for grades 10-12.

(i) North Carolina - upon request.

(j) Pennsylvania - 2 miles for fourth class districts.

(k) Rhode Island - districts must provide transportation to pupils whose attendance would otherwise be impracticable.

(l) Vermont - pupil may be furnished with total or partial transportation by decision of the Board of School Directors.

SAFETY AND HEALTH REQUIREMENTS

In most states a state board of education has the duty to prescribe health and safety regulations for schools. In a few states, however, this authority is vested in the local board.

Some of the states require that education staffs include health personnel and that they be present in the school. This person may be either a doctor or nurse. A few states explicitly require that each school have an infirmary.

As a part of their health policies, most of the states require pupils to have a physical examination. This examination is usually required before admission to school, and some states mandate periodic examinations thereafter. The responsibility for conducting the examination customarily rests with the school. However, many states allow the child's family physician to perform the examination. Nearly all the states require both a general physical and periodic hearing and eye examinations. Only a few states require dental examinations.

More than two-thirds of the states have provisions for immunization, usually as a mandatory precondition to enrollment. In contrast to physical examination provisions, it is the parents who normally have the responsibility for the immunizations. However, in a few instances, the school or a public health officer will immunize a pupil if her/his parents are unable to afford the medical expense.

Description of Headings for Chart on Safety and Health Requirements

State Must Prescribe Regulations - The state legislature requires that the state education agency prescribe regulations for safety and health requirements.

Requirements Locally Determined - The state requires that each district board develop safety and health regulations.

Pupil Services - States which have enacted or promulgated health requirements usually describe the specific level of pupil health services that a school must provide.

1) Infirmary - The state requires that each school provide an infirmary.

2) Nurse - The state requires that each district or school have a registered nurse.

3) Doctor - The state requires that each school or district have access to the services of a doctor.

Physical Examination - As part of their health policy some states require that all pupils have a physical examination either when they enter a school or every few years during their education.

1) Provided by Parent/School - The school or the parent or guardian must provide any physical examination that is required of a pupil.

2) General, Dental, Visual, Hearing - The state requires that each pupil undergo a general examination and/or examinations of her/his teeth, eyes or ears.

Immunization - Usually as a pre-condition to enrollment, the state may require that all pupils, unless excused for religious or other reasons, be immunized against certain diseases.

1) State Requirement - The state requires that all pupils be immunized against the prescribed diseases.

2) Provided by Parent/School - The school or the parent or guardian must provide any required immunization.

Safety and Health Requirements - footnotes

(a) Connecticut - towns with populations of 10,000 or more.

(b) Indiana - if not locally determined, then state will provide regulations.

(c) Kansas, Michigan - state shall provide if parent unable.

(d) North Carolina - detailed regulations for "sports medicine".

(e) Wisconsin - in counties having populations of less than 500,000.

SCHOOL CALENDAR

In almost all states the minimum number of days that a school must be in session is determined by statute. The most common minimum number of instruction days is 180. Some of the states penalize schools or local boards which violate the statutory minimum with a loss of state aid. Since many states calculate state aid on the basis of average daily membership (ADM), a school does not lose this aid due to temporary absences of its students.

Most states have enacted legislation specifying the length of the school day. Frequently, the length of the school day will vary according to grade level. In most states the length of the school day is 5 or 6 hours.

Some states regulate the length of individual classes. The average length of a class is 45 minutes. Laboratory classes usually extend about 10 minutes longer.

Description of Headings for Chart on School Calendar

Pupil-Instruction Days - By statute or regulation the state sets the maximum and/or minimum days that a school must be in session. If a school does not meet the state requirements for a calendar year, the state may have some sanction for this violation such as cutting off or reducing state aid (A).

Length of Day - A school must be in session a certain number of hours at each grade level. The number and/or letter before the colon indicates the grade level; the number after the colon indicates the amount of time.

Minimum Class Length - The state requires that each regular class period meet for a certain number of minutes each day or a certain number of hours each year.

Minimum Lab Course Length - The state sets separate class length requirements for laboratory courses.

School Calendar - footnotes

(a) Maine - not less than 180 days, including 5 days for inservice training.

(b) Michigan - 450 hours per year for kindergarten and 900 hours per year for grades 1 through 12.

(c) Pennsylvania - 5 years, 7 months.

TEACHER PERSONNEL POLICIES

When a teacher enters into a contract, the amount of her/his salary is usually specified. Most states have established a legal minimum salary. Oftentimes this is far below the actual salary earned. In other states a salary schedule is promulgated by statute or regulation specifying the contract salary of every teacher in the state. If there is no mention in the laws or regulations concerning salary, or if the laws specifically allows the local board to fix the salary, the chart indicates that the control rests with the local board.

Before a teacher achieves professional or career status, she/he must serve for a probationary period, ususally three years. Should the local board decide not to renew her/his contract during that period, it normally must provide the teacher with adequate notice. Some states also give the teacher the right to a hearing; fewer give her/him the right to appeal the board's decision not to renew the contract. In some instances the decision to continue or cancel the teacher's contract is made on the basis of personnel evaluations contained in her/his file. Most of the states which expressly provide for these evaluations also protect her/his right of access to the files.

A teacher's employment may also be interrupted if she/he contracts a contagious disease. The right of a school board to suspend a teacher for health reasons is considered an implied term in a teacher's contract by some states. Though most states do not provide for suspension, many do require teachers to submit a certificate of health approved by a licensed physician and be periodically re-examined.

After the teacher finishes her/his probationary period she/he may achieve tenure or career status. In many states a teacher automatically reaches tenure when the local board fails to cancel her/his contract after the probationary period. In those states that do not provide for automatic career status, the teacher is required to negotiate a new contract with the local board. A tenured teacher normally enjoys benefits not shared by a probationary teacher. Many states permit her/him to take sabbatical leave or otherwise pursue studies for professional improvement without jeopardizing career status. Practically every state protects her/his right to notice, hearing and appeal for discharge, demotion or suspension from her/his position.

It should be noted that dismissal or demotion occurs only if the board can prove that the teacher has violated the standards of the profession. Some states have created ethics commisions, composed largely of teachers, to formulate guidelines on the standards and ethics for the profession. Half these states give the agency advisory authority only; but half vest the agency with the power to discharge, demote or suspend those who act unprofessionally.

The chart also indicates which states require mandatory retirement beyond a certain age. Sometimes a state will permit a local district to fix a retirement age.

Description of Headings for Chart on Teacher Personnel Policies/Employment Practices

Salary - The amount that the teacher earns is subject to state statute, rules, or regulations or to local determination. When the state determines the salary requirements, it is usually to set a minimum salary requirement which district boards may supplement.

Probationary Period - This period of employment occurs before the teacher has achieved professional or career status.

1) Length - The duration of the probationary period indicates how long a teacher must be employed before she/he is eligible for career status.

2) Termination of Employment - A teacher may be dismissed from employment if the contracting party complies with the stated statutory procedures: adequate notice to the teacher of the board's decision not to renew the contract; the right to a fact-finding hearing with attendant procedural safeguards; and the right of the aggrieved teacher to appeal

Teacher's File - The contracting party invariably maintains a record for personnel purposes containing information about the teacher's performance. The two categories indicate whether there is a file which contains evaluations of the teachers performance and whether the teacher has access to this file.

Health Standards - The state provides by statute or regulation that a teacher must be in good health prior to and during her/his work in the classroom.

1) Prior Certification - the teacher must present an affidavit or certificate signed by a licensed physicial as proof of her/his good health before she/he will be allowed to teach.

2) Periodic Re-Examinations - The teacher must periodically furnish additional proof from a physician that she/he continues to be in good health.

3) Suspension for Ill Health - A teacher may be suspended from teaching for the period of time that her/his health endangers the well-being of her/his pupils and associates.

Tenured Teachers - This category deals with some of the important features of the tenured or career status of teachers.

1) Automatic status - The teacher automatically achieves professional status when she/he completes the probationary period and the board does not terminate her/his contract.

2) Discharge or demotion for cause - The teacher must be accorded certain procedural rights before she/he can be fired or given a lower position, even if the board has a reason which is valid on its face.

3) Sabbatical leave - The contracting party allows the teacher to interrupt her/his teaching in order to study or to otherwise improve the quality of her/his services without diminution of benefits of her/his career status.

Professional Ethics - The state or local agency has established an agency whose function is to maintain the standards of the teaching profession. This agency may have only advisory powers, or it may have the authority to issue regulations and enforce them.

Mandatory Retirement Age - The statutes or regulations contain a stated age after which teachers may no longer perform their duties.

Teacher Personnel Policies - foonotes

(a) Kentucky - at the discretion of local boards of education.

(b) North Dakota - teacher preparation file not available to teacher, teacher personnel file is available.

TEXTBOOKS

It is normally within the power of the local school board to adopt textbooks for use in the school district. However, the adoption powers may be subject to restrictions imposed by the state. In most states the district board is required to make its selection of textbooks from a list prepared by the state educational agency. These state approved lists usually contain recommendations for several books for each course thus allowing the local board some control over the selection process. In a number of states this list is drawn up by an independent textbook commission. Several states which use the state approved list allow the district boards to adopt supplementary texts for a course if they comply with certain state standards. Often these state standards are not articulated; rather, the state agency reviews the proposed texts on an individual basis.

In several states, the state education agency does not oversee the local selection process and a district board may adopt any textbook. Even in those states the state agency will generally provide the district with a recommended list.

In other states the district board must adopt the basal text for every course from the state approved list, but the adoption of any additional instructional material does not require state approval.

About half the states have extensive sections of the code devoted to the regulation of textbook contracts with publishers. To prevent the use of out-of-date textbooks many states require that the list of approved textbooks be reviewed every few years.

Most states require that textbooks be supplied free to all students. Some states refine that requirement to account for years when the state may have allotted insufficient money to provide free textbooks to all students. Under these circumstances, these states set a priority requiring that elementary grades be provided with free textbooks before secondary grades. In some states the district board must provide free textbooks to all indigent pupils, while retaining discretion in all othe instances.

Description of Headings for Chart on Textbooks

Textbooks Supplied Free - The State requires that textbooks be supplied free to all students; otherwise, the district board has the discretion of supplying textbooks free.

Local Selection

1) Without State Approval - The district may select all (X) or part (P) of its textbooks without state approval.
2) From State Approved List - The district board may select all (X) or part (P) of its textbooks from the state's list of approved textbooks.
3) Within State Standards - The district board must select all (X) or part (P) of its textbooks in accordance with certain state standards (i.e., with approval of specific textbooks).

Periodic Review of State Approved List - This number refers to the maximum number of years a textbook may remain on the state approved list without being reviewed for suitability.

State Regulation of Textbook Contracts - By statute the state sets controls on contracts for textbooks.

Textbooks - footnotes

(a) Connecticut - town board may change textbook selection by a 2/3 vote.

(b) Illinois, Iowa - district election to determine.

(c) Kansas - free textbooks when parents or guardian or any child attending public school are unable to purchase.

(d) North Dakota - by district decision.

GENERAL TEACHER CERTIFICATION

In all but two states, certification for teachers is a specifically enumerated prerequisite to employment. There are certain general requirements concerning individual qualifications that are usually necessary for such certification. More than half of the states have character and health requirements and slightly less have citizenship and age requirements. Only one state, Florida, has a residency requirement.

Those states which have examination and/or experience requirements usually provide that they are alternatives to the existing certification requirements. They are generally in lieu of certification requirements rather than in addition to them. In order to maintain one's certification, more than half of the states require the teacher to continue her/his education.

Most states list a undergraduate degree as an prerequisite to certification. Nearly half of the states have graduate degree requirements, although there are often coupled with the provisions concerning continuing education. Many states also require a recommendation from the degree granting institution. Sixteen states have student teaching requirements and an additional ten list student teaching as "authorized".

Authority to promulgate certification standards generally rests with the State Board of Education. A few states, however, provide for the State Superintendent of Education to either share that authority or exercise it entirely. In only two states does the Department of Education bear this responsibility. Fourteen states grant this authority to other designated bodies such as Certification Advisory Committees.

Most states have provisions for permanent and probationary teacher certification. Slightly less than half the states provide for temporary and emergency certification. About half of the states provide for substitute teacher certification, but only ten states have "professional" teacher's certificates.

Almost all of the states provide for suspension/revocation procedures with at least minimal due process guarantees. Most of the states are party to the Interstate Agreement on Qualification of Educational Personnel. In addition many states have other reciprocal agreements for the recognition of out-of-state certificates.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS' CERTIFICATION

In all states except one, certification for administrative officers is a prerequisite to employment. There are certain general requirements concerning individual qualifications that are usually necessary for such certification. More than half the states have character and health requirements for administrative officer certification, and slightly less than half have citizenship and age requirements. Only a few states have residency requirements.

Most states have degree requirements for certification, based upon job demands In almost all cases those states which require an undergraduate degree also require some graduate study. More than half of the states have experience requirements, but less than half require recommendations and examinations. Only three states list clinical experience as a requirement for certification

Supervisory certificates are granted most often at the state as opposed to the local level. About two-thirds of the states offer these certificates. Most states which offer probationary certificates do so as a precondition for conferral of permanent certificates. Some states provide for emergency and temporary certificates. Almost all states provide for a suspension procedure for certificate holders.

EXISTING CERTIFICATION REQUIREMENTS BY JOB TITLE

In slightly less than half of the states, the state superintendent and her/his assistants must be certified. In nearly all states regional and local superintendents are required to be certified. This is also true for principals and assistant principals.

In almost all states, specialists (i.e., psychologists, counselors, social workers, etc.) are required to be certified in order to work in the public schools.

In most states teachers are required to be certified in the specific areas, i.e., pre-school, elementary, junior high and secondary education, in which they intend to teach.

Special education and vocational education teachers in most states require certification to teach, whereas fewer than half the states require bilingual and adult education teachers to be certificate holders. Only six states require compensatory education teachers to be certified. More than half of the states either require or authorize teacher aides to hold certificates.

INTERSTATE AGREEMENT ON QUALIFICATIONS OF EDUCATIONAL PERSONNEL

ARTICLE I

PURPOSE, FINDINGS, AND POLICY

1. The states party to this agreement, desiring by common action to improve their respective school systems by utilizing the teacher or other professional educational person wherever educated, declare that it is the policy of each of them, on the basis of cooperation with one another, to take advantage of the preparation and experience of such persons wherever gained, thereby serving the best interests of society, of education, and of the teaching profession. It is the purpose of this agreement to provide for the development and execution of such programs of cooperation as will facilitate the movement of teachers and other professional educational personnel among the states party to it, and to authorize specific interstate educational personnel contracts to achieve that end.

2. The party states find that included in the large movement of population among all sections of the nation are many qualified educational personnel who move for family and other personal reasons but who are hindered in using their professional skill and experience in their new locations. Variations from state to state in requirements for qualifying educational personnel discourage such personnel from taking the steps necessary to qualify in other states. As a consequence, a significant number of professionally prepared and experienced educators is lost to our school systems. Facilitating the employment of qualified educational personnel, without reference to their states of origin, can increase the available educational resources. Participation in this compact can increase the availability of educational manpower.

ARTICLE II

DEFINITIONS

As used in this agreement and contracts made pursuant to it, unless the context clearly requires otherwise:

1. "Educational personnel" means persons who must meet requirements pursuant to state law as a condition of employment in educational programs.

2. "Designated state official" means the educational official of a state selected by that state to negotiate and enter into, on behalf of this state, contracts pursuant to this agreement.

3. "Accept", or any variant thereof, means to recognize and give effect to one or more determinations of another state relating to the qualifications of educational personnel in lieu of making or requiring a like determination that would otherwise be required by or pursuant to the laws of a receiving state.

4. "State" means a state, territory, or possession of the United States; the District of Columbia; or the commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

5. "Originating state" means a state (and the subdivision thereof, if any) whose determination that certain educational personnel are qualified to be employed for specific duties in schools is acceptable in accordance with the terms of a contract made pursuant to article III.

6. "Receiving state" means a state (and the subdivisions thereof) which accepts educational personnel in accordance with the terms of a contract made pursuant to article III.

ARTICLE III

INTERSTATE EDUCATIONAL PERSONNEL CONTRACTS

1. The designated state official of a party state may make one or more contracts on behalf of his state with one or more other party states providing for the acceptance of educational personnel. Any such contract for the period of its duration shall be applicable to and binding on the states whose designated state officials enter into it, and the subdivisions of those states, with the same force and effect as if incorporated in this agreement. A designated state official may enter into a contract pursuant to this article only with states in which he finds that there are programs of education, certification standards or other acceptable qualifications that assure preparation or qualification of educational personnel on a basis sufficiently comparable, even though not identical to that prevailing in his own state.

2. Any such contract shall provide for:

(a) Its duration.

(b) The criteria to be applied by an originating state in qualifying educational personnel for acceptance by a receiving state.

(c) Such waivers, substitutions, and conditional acceptances as shall aid the practical effectuation of the contract without sacrifice of basic educational standards.

(d) Any other necessary matters.

3. No contract made pursuant to this agreement shall be for a term longer than five years but any such contract may be renewed for like or lesser periods.

4. Any contract dealing with acceptance of educational personnel on the basis of their having completed an educational program shall specify the earliest date or dates on which originating state approval of the program or programs involved can have occurred. No contract made pursuant to this agreement shall require acceptance by a receiving state of any persons qualified because of successful completion of a program prior to January first, nineteen hundred fifty-four.

5. The certification or other acceptance of a person who has been accepted pursuant to the terms of a contract shall not be revoked or otherwise impaired because the contract has expired or been terminated. However, any certificate or other qualifying document may be revoked or suspended on any ground which would be sufficient for revocation or suspension of a certificate or other qualifying document initially granted or approved in the receiving state.

6. A contract committee composed of the designated state officials of the contracting states or their representatives shall keep the contract under continuous review, study means of improving its administration, and report no less frequently than once a year to the heads of the appropriate education agencies of the contracting states.

ARTICLE IV

APPROVED AND ACCEPTED PROGRAMS

1. Nothing in this Agreement shall be construed to repeal or otherwise modify any law or regulation of a party State relating to the approval of programs of educational preparation having effect solely on the qualification of educational personnel within that State.

2. To the extent that contracts made pursuant to this Agreement deal with the educational requirements for the proper qualification of educational personnel, acceptance of a program of educational preparation shall be in accordance with such procedures and requirements as may be provided in the applicable contract.

ARTICLE V

INTERSTATE COOPERATION

The party States agree that:

1. They will, so far as practicable, prefer the making of multilateral contracts pursuant to Article III of this Agreement.

2. They will facilitate and strengthen cooperation in interstate certification and other elements of educational personnel qualification and for this purpose shall cooperate with agencies, organizations, and associations interested in certification and other elements of educational personnel qualification.

ARTICLE VI

AGREEMENT EVALUATION

The designated state officials of any party state may meet from time to time as a group to evaluate progress under the agreement, and to formulate recommendations for changes.

ARTICLE VII

OTHER ARRANGEMENTS

Nothing in this agreement shall be construed to prevent or inhibit other arrangements or practices of any party state or states to facilitate the interchange of educational personnel.

ARTICLE VIII

EFFECT AND WITHDRAWAL

1. This agreement shall become effective when enacted into law by two states. Thereafter it shall become effective as to any state upon its enactment of this agreement.

2. Any party state may withdraw from this agreement by enacting a statute repealing the same, but no such withdrawal shall take effect until one year after the governor of the withdrawing state has given notice in writing of the withdrawal to the governors of all other party states.

3. No withdrawal shall relieve the withdrawing state of any obligation imposed upon it by a contract to which it is a party. The duration of contracts and the methods and conditions of withdrawal therefrom shall be those specified in their terms.

ARTICLE IX

CONSTRUCTION AND SEVERABILITY

This agreement shall be liberally construed so as to effectuate the purposes thereof. The provisions of this agreement shall be severable and if any phrase, clause, sentence, or provision of this agreement is declared to be contrary to the constitution of any state or of the United States, or the application thereof to any government, agency, person, or circumstance is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this agreement and the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person, or circumstance shall not be affected thereby. If this agreement shall be held contrary to the constitution of any state participating therein, the agreement shall remain in full force and effect as to the state affected as to all severable matters.

COMPACT FOR EDUCATION
PREAMBLE

WHEREAS, the proper education of all citizens is one of the most important responsibilities of the states to preserve a free and open society in the United States; and,

WHEREAS, the increasing demands of our whole national life for improving and expanding educational services require a broad exchange of research data and information concerning the problems and practices of education; and,

WHEREAS, there is a vital need for strengthening the voices of the states in the formulation of alternative nationwide educational policies,

THE STATES AFFIRM the need for close and continuing consultation among our several states on all matters of education, and do hereby establish this compact for education.

ARTICLE I--PURPOSE AND POLICY

A. It is the purpose of this compact to:

1. Establish and maintain close cooperation and understanding among executive, legislative, professional educational and lay leadership on a nationwide basis at the state and local levels.

2. Provide a forum for the discussion, development, crystallization and recommendation of public policy alternatives in the field of education.

3. Provide a clearing house of information on matters relating to educational problems and how they are being met in different places throughout the nation, so that the executive and legislative branches of state government and of local communities may have ready access to the experience and record of the entire country, and so that both lay and professional groups in the field of education may have additional avenues for the sharing of experience and the interchange of ideas in the formation of public policy in education.

4. Facilitate the improvement of state and local educational systems so that all of them will be able to meet adequate and desirable goals in a society which requires continuous qualitative and quantitative advance in educational opportunities, methods and facilities.

B. It is the policy of this compact to encourage and promote local and state initiative in the development, maintenance, improvement and administration of educational systems and institutions in a manner which will accord with the needs and advantages of diversity among localities and states.

C. The party states recognize that each of them has an interest in the quality and quantity of education furnished in each of the other states, as well as in the excellence of its own educational systems and institutions, because of the highly mobile character of individuals within the nation, and because the products and services contributing to the health, welfare and economic advancement of each state are supplied in significant part by persons educated in other states.

ARTICLE II--STATE DEFINED

As used in this compact, "state" means a state, territory, or possession of the United States, the District of Columbia, or the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

ARTICLE III--THE COMMISSION

A. The educational commission of the states, hereinafter called "the commission", is hereby established. The commission shall consist of seven members representing each party state. One of such members shall be the governor; two shall be members of the state legislature selected by its respective houses and serving in such manner as the legislature may determine; and four shall be appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the governor, unless the laws of the state otherwise provide. If the laws of a state prevent legislators from serving on the commission, six members shall be appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the governor, unless the laws of the state otherwise provide. In addition to any other principles or requirements which a state may establish for the appointment and service of its members of the commission, the guiding principle for the composition of the membership on the commission from each party state shall be that the members representing such state shall, by virtue of their training, experience, knowledge or affiliations be in a position collectively to reflect broadly the interests of the state government, higher education, the state education system, local education, lay and professional, public and non-public educational leadership. Of those appointees, one shall be the head of a state agency or institution, designated by the governor, having responsibility for one or more programs of public education. In addition to the members of the commission representing the party states, there may be not to exceed ten non-voting commissioners selected by the steering committee for terms of one year. Such commissioners shall represent leading national organizations of professional educators or persons concerned with educational administration.

B. The members of the commission shall be entitled to one vote each on the commission. No action of the commission shall be binding unless taken at a meeting at which a majority of the total number of votes on the commission are cast in favor thereof. Action of the commission shall be only at a meeting at which a majority of the commissioners are present. The commission shall meet at least once a year. In its bylaws, and subject to such directions and limitations as may be contained therein, the commission may delegate the exercise of any of its powers to the steering committee or the executive director, except for the power to approve budgets or requests for appropriations, the power to make policy recommendations pursuant to article V and adoption of the annual report pursuant to article III (j).

C. The commission shall have a seal.

D. The commission shall elect annually, from among its members, a chairman, who shall be a governor, vice chairman and a treasurer. The commission shall provide for the appointment of an executive director. Such executive director shall serve at the pleasure of the commission, and together with the treasurer and such other personnel as the commission may deem appropriate shall be bonded in such amount as the commission shall determine. The executive director shall be secretary.

E. Irrespective of the civil service, personnel or other merit system laws of any of the party states, the executive director subject to the approval of the steering committee shall appoint, remove or discharge such personnel as may be necessary for the performance of the functions of the commission, and shall fix the duties and compensation of such personnel. The commission in its bylaws shall provide for the personnel policies and programs of the commission.

F. The commission may borrow, accept or contract for the services of personnel from any party jurisdiction, the United States, or any subdivision or agency of the aforementioned governments, or from any agency of two or more of the party jurisdictions or their subdivisions.

G. The commission may accept for any of its purposes and functions under this compact any and all donations, and grants of money, equipment, supplies, materials and services, conditional or otherwise, from any state, the United States, or any other governmental agency, or from any person, firm, association, foundation, or corporation, and may receive, utilize and dispose of the same. Any donation or grant accepted by the commission pursuant to this paragraph or services borrowed pursuant to paragraph (f) of this article shall be reported in the annual report of the commission. Such report shall include the nature, amount and conditions, if any, of the donation, grant, or services borrowed, and the identity of the donor or lender.

H. The commission may establish and maintain such facilities as may be necessary for the transacting of its business. The commission may acquire, hold, and convey real and personal property and any interest therein.

I. The commission shall adopt bylaws for the conduct of its business and shall have the power to amend and rescind these bylaws. The commission shall publish its bylaws in convenient form and shall file a copy thereof and a copy of any amendment thereto, with the appropriate agency or officer in each of the party states.

J. The commission annually shall make to the governor and legislature of each party state a report covering the activities of the commission for the preceding year. The commission may make such additional reports as it may deem desirable.

ARTICLE IV--POWERS

In addition to authority conferred on the commission by other provisions of the compact, the commission shall have authority to:

1. Collect, correlate, analyze and interpret information and data concerning educational needs and resources.

2. Encourage and foster research in all aspects of education, but with special reference to the desirable scope of instruction, organization, administration, and instructional methods and standards employed or suitable for employment in public educational systems.

3. Develop proposals for adequate financing of education as a whole and at each of its many levels.

4. Conduct or participate in research of the types referred to in this article in any instance where the commission finds that such research is necessary for the advancement of the purposes and policies of this compact, utilizing fully the resources of national associations, regional compact organizations for higher education, and other agencies and institutions, both public and private.

5. Formulate suggested policies and plans for the improvement of public education as a whole, or for any segment thereof, and make recommendations with respect thereto available to the appropriate governmental units, agencies and public officials.

6. Do such other things as may be necessary or incidental to the administration of any of its authority or functions pursuant to this compact.

ARTICLE V--COOPERATION WITH FEDERAL GOVERNMENT

A. If the laws of the United States specifically so provide, or if administrative provision is made therefor within the federal government, the United States may be represented on the commission by not to exceed ten representatives. Any such representative or representatives of the United States shall be appointed and serve in such manner as may be provided by or pursuant to federal law, and may be drawn from any one or more branches of the federal government, but no such representatives shall have a vote on the commission.

B. The commission may provide information and make recommendations to any executive or legislative agency or officer of the federal government concerning the common educational policies of the states, and may advise with any such agencies or officers concerning any matter of mutual interest.

ARTICLE VI--COMMITTEES

A. To assist in the expeditious conduct of its business when the full commission is not meeting, the commission shall elect a steering committee of thirty members which, subject to the provisions of this compact and consistent with the policies of the commission, shall be constituted and function as provided in the bylaws of the commission. One-third of the voting membership of the steering committee shall consist of governors, and the remainder shall consist of other members of the commission. A federal representative on the commission may serve with the steering committee, but without vote. The voting members of the steering committee shall serve for terms of two years, except that members elected to the first steering committee of the commission shall be elected as follows: fifteen for one year and fifteen for two years. The chairman, vice chairman, and treasurer of the commission shall be members of the steering committee and, anything in this paragraph to the contrary notwithstanding, shall serve during their continuance in these offices. Vacancies in the steering committee shall not affect its authority to act, but the commission at its next regularly ensuing meeting following the occurrence of any vacancy shall fill it for the unexpired term. No person shall serve more than two terms as a member of the steering committee: provided that service for a partial term of one year or less shall not be counted toward the two term limitation.

B. The commission may establish advisory and technical committees composed of state, local, and federal officials, and private persons to advise it with respect to any one or more of its functions. Any advisory or technical committee may, on request of the state concerned, be established to consider any matter of special concern to two or more of the party states.

C. The commission may establish such additional committees as its bylaws may provide.

ARTICLE VII--FINANCE

A. The commission shall advise the governor or designated officer or officers of each party state of its budget and estimated expenditures for such period as may be required by the laws of that party state. Each of the commission's budgets of estimated expenditures shall contain specific recommendations of the amount or amounts to be appropriated by each of the party states.

B. The total amount of appropriation requests under any budget shall be apportioned among the party states. In making such apportionment, the commission shall devise and employ a formula which takes equitable account of the populations and per capita income levels of the party states.

C. The commission shall not pledge the credit of any party states. The commission may meet any of its obligations in whole or in part with funds available to it pursuant to article III(g) of this compact, provided that the commission takes specific action setting aside such funds prior to incurring an obligation to be met in whole or in part in such manner. Except where the commission makes use of funds available to it pursuant to article III(g) thereof, the commission shall not incur any obligation prior to the allotment of funds by the party states adequate to meet the same.

D. The commission shall keep accurate accounts of all receipts and disbursements. The receipts and disbursements of the commission shall be subject to the audit and accounting procedures established by its bylaws. However, all receipts and disbursements of funds handled by the commission shall be audited yearly by a qualified public accountant, and the report of the audit shall be included in and become part of the annual reports of the commission.

E. The accounts of the commission shall be open at any reasonable time for inspection by duly constituted officers of the party states and by any persons authorized by the commission.

F. Nothing contained herein shall be construed to prevent commission compliance with laws relating to audit or inspection of accounts by or on behalf of any government contributing to the support of the commission.

ARTICLE VIII--ELIGIBLE PARTIES; ENTRY INTO AND WITHDRAWAL

A. This compact shall have as eligible parties all states, territories, and possessions of the United States, the District of Columbia, and the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. In respect of any such jurisdiction not having a governor, the term "governor", as used in this compact, shall mean the closest equivalent official of such jurisdiction.

B. Any state or other eligible jurisdiction may enter into this compact and it shall become binding thereon when it has adopted the same: provided that in order to enter into initial effect, adoption by at least ten eligible party jurisdictions shall be required.

C. Adoption of the compact may be either by enactment thereof or by adherence thereto by the governor; provided that in the absence of enactment, adherence by the governor shall be sufficient to make his state a party only until December thirty-one, nineteen hundred sixty-seven. During any period when a state is participating in this compact through gubernatorial action, the governor shall appoint those persons who, in addition to himself, shall serve as the members of the commission from his state, and shall provide to the commission from any source available to him.

D. Except for a withdrawal effective on December thirty-one, nineteen hundred sixty-seven in accordance with paragraph C of this article, any party state may withdraw from this compact by enacting a statute repealing the same, but no such withdrawal shall take effect until one year after the governor of the withdrawing state has given notice in writing of the withdrawal to the governors of all other party states. No withdrawal shall affect any liability already incurred by or chargeable to a party state prior to the time of such withdrawal.

ARTICLE IX--CONSTRUCTION AND SEVERABILITY

This compact shall be liberally construed so as to effectuate the purposes thereof. 1. The provisions of this compact shall be severable and if any phrase, clause, sentence or provision of this compact is declared to be contrary to the constitution of any state or of the United States, or the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person or circumstances is held invalid, the validity of the remainder of this compact and the applicability thereof to any government, agency, person or circumstances shall not be affected thereby. If this compact shall be held contrary to the constitution of any state participating therein, the compact shall remain in full force and effect as to the state affected as to all severable matters.

2. Of the seven members of the educational commission of the states representing this state, one shall be the governor, one shall be appointed by the temporary president of the senate from among the members of that body, one shall be appointed by the speaker of the assembly from among the members of that body, one shall be the commissioner of education, and three shall be appointed by and serve at the pleasure of the governor. The members of the commission representing this state shall receive no compensation for their services but shall be allowed their actual and necessary expenses in performance of their duties hereunder.

3. Pursuant to article III(i) of the compact, the commission shall file a copy of its bylaws and any amendment thereto with the governor.

ALASKA

The Alaska Constitution mandates a system of public schools open to all children and free from sectarian control.

The Board of Education consists of seven members appointed by the Governor subject to legislative approval. The Board of Education is at the head of the Department of Education and appoints a Commissioner of Education, subject to the approval of the Governor, who is designated the principal executive officer of the Department of Education. The Department of Education is responsible for the general supervision of the State's public schools.

City school districts, borough school districts and regional educational attendance areas comprise the districts of the public school system. Each city or borough school district is operated on a district-wide basis and governed by an elected school board. Each regional educational attendance area is operated on an area-wide basis and governed by an elected regional school board. Each city and borough school district with fewer than 5,000 average daily attendance has a school board of five members. Each city and borough school district with more than 5,000 average daily attendance has a school board of seven members. Each school board employs a chief school administrator for the district. The districts may join together to establish regional resource centers governed by a board consisting of one member from each participating district. The Association of Alaska School Boards is the representative agency of the school boards of the State. Each community or military reservation served by a regional educational attendance area school has a community school committee consisting of three to five elected members who make recommendations to the board of the regional educational attendance area.

ARKANSAS

The Arkansas Constitution establishes that the State maintain a system of free schools for all persons between the ages of six and twenty-one to be supported by taxation and supervised by officers provided for by the General Assembly.

The State Board of Education is composed of nine members appointed by the governor subject to confirmation of the State Senate. The Board has general supervision of the public schools of the state as well as managerial and regulatory duties prescribed to it. It promulgates rules and regulations for certifying teachers and has general supervision of vocational education.

The Director of the Department of Education is appointed by the State Board of Education subject to the approval of the Governor. He/she acts as ex-officio secretary of the Board without vote. The Director of the Department of Education serves at the pleasure of the governor.

The Department of Education consists of the State Board of Education, the Director of the Department of Education and divisions for the administration of programs within the state.

A County Board of Education of five elected members exists for each county in Arkansas. The County Boards of Education have general supervisory powers over the public schools except in districts which employ a Superintendent of Schools. A County Board may select a County School Supervisor.

All subdivisions of the state public school system are designated "school districts". A rural school district is one having a student population of one hundred fifty or fewer, it has three directors. A school district in which there is located a city of the first class has six directors. For schools within the comporate limits of a city having 2,500 or more population, the directors of the district may appoint a City Superintendent.

CALIFORNIA

The State Board of Education consists of ten (10) members appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of two-thirds of the Senate. The Superintendent of Public Instruction is secretary and executive officer of the Board and ex officio Director of Education. The Department of Education is administered through the State Board of Education and the Director of Education. In addition to the legislatively-created Division of Libraries, the State Board of Education, upon recommendation of the Director of Education, may establish such divisions as are necessary for the proper transaction of business by the Department of Education.

An "educational policy advisory commission" is a body of professional and lay members established by law to advise the State Board of Education. An "educational advisory committee" is an advisory body to the Superintendent of Public Instruction concerning the administration of programs and serves at the pleasure of the Superintendent of Public Instruction.

School districts are classified as: (1) elementary districts not operated by a common administration; (2) high school districts not operated by a common administration; (3) unified school districts (those maintaining grades K or 1 through 12); and (4) elementary and high school districts under one common administration. Every school district is under the control of a Board of School Trustees or a Board of Education. Except as otherwise provided, the governing board of a school district consists of five elected members. It may employ a District Superintendent of Schools to whom it may delegate its recordkeeping and reporting responsibilities. It is the policy of the State that all elementary school districts be included in a high school district or in a unified school district.

County Boards of Education exist where there is not a city school district (one "lying wholly or partly within a city and county"). The Boards consist of five or seven elected members as determined by the county committee on school district organization. The County Superintendent of Schools is the ex officio secretary and executive officer of the County Board of Education and may be elected or appointed. A Unified School District is governed by a Board of Education as provided for in its charter. When it has within it boundaries a chartered city or a city of more than 8,000, or average daily attendance is 1,500 or more, it will be deemed a city school district governed by an elected City Board of Education.

DELAWARE

The Delaware Constitution requires the General Assembly to provide a general and efficient system of free public schools. The general administration and supervision of the state school system is vested in a State Board of Education composed of seven members appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The Board appoints the State Superintendent of Public Instruction who serves as the Board's executive secretary.

All school districts in the state are known as reorganized school districts. Each reorganized school district is administered and supervised by a school board. The number of members of respective school boards and manner of election or appointment is determined by statute. Each school board appoints a superintendent of schools who serves as chief school officer for that district and executive secretary to the school board.

GEORGIA

The State Board of Education consists of one member from each congressional district in Georgia. The members are appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. The State Superintendent of Schools is elected in the same manner as the Governor. He/she is the executive secretary of the State Board of Education and the administrative officer of the State Department of Education. Beside providing rules and regulations prescribing a course of study for all common and high schools receiving state aid and generally supervising the State Department of Education, the State Board of Education supervises the Georgia Academy for the Blind and the Georgia School for the Deaf.

Each county constitutes one school district which is managed by a County Board of Education. The grand jury of each county (except those counties under a local system) selects five persons of the respective county to constitute the County Board of Education. A County Superintendent of Schools is elected by the voters of the respective county for terms of four years. He/she serves as liaison between the State Superintendent of Schools and the subordinate school officers and as agent of the County Board.

HAWAII

The Constitution of Hawaii mandates the State to provide a statewide system of public schools from sectarian control. It establishes a Board of Education of geographical diversity to be elected by qualified voters and delegates to the Board of Education control over the public school system through its executive officer, the Superintendent of Education, who is appointed by the Board and serves as its Secretary.

The Board of Education consists of eleven members; eight of whom are elected from their respective districts, three of whom are elected at-large in the city and county of Honolulu. It serves as the executive board of the Department of Education which is charged with control and responsibility for the conduct of all affairs pertaining to public instruction. Every private school is subject also to the supervision of the Department of Education.

The Department may designate school districts, establish their boundaries, and alter the same from time to time. A District School Advisory Council is appointed by the Governor for each School Board District to advise the Board of Education and the member of the Board of Education from its district.

IDAHO

The Idaho State Legislature established a State Board of Education for the general supervision, government, and control of all state educational institutions as well as the public school system. The Board is known as the State Board of Education and Board of Regents of the University of Idaho. It consists of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction, ex officio, and seven members appointed by the Governor and confirmed by the Senate. The Office of the State Board of Education is the executive agency of the State Board of Education. The State Board of Education appoints an executive officer of the Office of the State Board of Education who serves at the pleasure of the Board.

All school districts are under the supervision and control of the State Board. An elementary school district is one giving instruction only to pupils in kindergarten or grade one through grade eight. All other school districts are to give instruction to pupils in kindergarten or grade one through grade twelve. An elementary school district may be reclassified as a school district by petition to the State Board of Education by its Board of Trustees and submission of the question of issuance of bonds for the purpose of acquiring a secondary school building to the electors of the district. A school district may be reclassified an elementary school district if it is not maintaining an accredtied secondary school. Each elementary school district is divided into three trustee zones and each other school district is divided into no fewer than five and no greater than nine such zones. The number of zones within a district determines the number of members of its Board of Trustees. A school district other than an elementary school district may employ a Superintendent of Schools who will be the executive officer of the Board of Trustees and its authorized representative.

INDIANA

The Indiana State Board of Education is divided into three commissions: a commission on general education, a commission on textbook adoption, and a commission on teacher training licensing. Each commission consists of six appointive members all of whom are appointed by the Governor for terms of four years. No member is eligible to serve on more than one commission at the same time. The State Superintendent of Public Instruction is the chairman of the Board and of each commission. He/she is elected at the same general election as the Governor.

The trustees of each county township constitute a County Board of Education. This board appoints by majority vote of its members a County Superintendent of Schools to serve a term of four years. The County Superintendent of Schools serves as ex officio chairman and administrator of the board. Together with other township trustees of the county, the township trustees of each and every township constitute a County Board of Education for the purpose of managing the affairs of the County School Corporation which includes all areas not designated school cities or school towns. The government of the common schools of the county is vested in the board. Each township organized in any county is deemed a School Township.

The government of the common schools in School Cities of 85,000 to 130,000 inhabitants is vested in a Board of School Trustees consisting of five members elected for terms of four years.

The common schools of a common school corporation of at least 300,000 inhabitants are governed, managed and controlled by a Board of School Commissioners consisting of seven members elected on a nonpartisan basis. The Board of School Commissioners appoints a General Superintendent who acts as general administrator.

Provision is made for the reorganization of school corporations and county committees are appointed to this end. Community school corporations established due to reorganization have the same powers, rights, duties and obligations of comparable school corporations prior to reorganization.

The State Board of Public Instruction consists of nine members appointed by the Governor with the approval of two-thirds of the members of the Senate. No person engaged in professional education or who derives a major portion of his/her income from an interest connected with education is eligible for appointment to the State Board. Each member is appointed for terms of six years. Effective July 1, 1979, the State Board will appoint a Superintendent of Public Instruction with the approval of two-thirds of the members of the Senate. The Superintendent acts as executive officer of the State Board in all matters pertaining to vocational education and vocational rehabilitation. The Department of Public Instruction acts as an administrative, supervisory and consultive agency under the direction of the State Superintendent and the State Board.

It is the policy of the State to organize school districts into units which will insure an equal educational opportunity to all children of the State. All units are to maintain twelve grades and any school district which ceases to meet this requirement must merge with a contiguous district.

In any district including all or part of a city of 15,000 or more population and in any district in which voters have authorized seven directors, the Board of Directors of each school corporation consists of seven elected members. In all other districts, the Board of Directors consists of five elected members. The Board of Directors of any school district may employ a Superintendent of Schools as its executive officer.

Area Educational Agencies are established to provide special education and media services to local school districts within a merged area.

KENTUCKY

The Constitution of the Commonwealth of Kentucky directs that the Superintendent of Public Instruction shall be elected for a four-year term. The Superintendent may not be elected to successive terms. It further mandates that the General Assembly shall provide for an efficient system of common schools throughout the State.

The Department of Education consists of the State Board of Education and the Superintendent of Public Instruction who acts as the head of the Department. He/she is charged with all administrative functions relating to the management and control of all public common schools, vocational education, vocational rehabilitation, the Kentucky School for the Blind, and the Kentucky School for the Deaf.

The State Board of Education is composed of seven members, none of whom may be professional educators. Members are appointed by the Governor on a rotational basis from the State's district. The Superintendent of Public Instruction is the executive officer of the State Board of Education and performs such duties as are assigned to him by the Board.

Each county constitutes a County School District except where there are independent school districts within the county, the County School District consists of the remainder of the county. A Board of Education consisting of five elected members controls and manages each school district, except in counties where an independent district has merged with it, the Board consists of seven elected members. Each Board of Education has responsibility for the general control and management of the public schools in its district and is to appoint a Superintendent of Schools to advise it and to generally supervise the conduct of schools, the course of instruction, the management of teachers, the discipline of students, and the management of business affairs.

MAINE

The Department of Educational and Cultural Services supervises, guides and plans for a coordinated system of public education. To this end, the Department is composed of the State Museum Bureau, the Arts and Humanities Bureau, the Maine State Library Bureau, the Bureau of Vocational Education and such other bureaus as the Commissioner of Educational and Cultural Services deems necessary to fulfill the duties of the Department.

The Commissioner of Educational and Cultural Services is appointed by the Governor after consultation with the State Board of Education. The appointment is subject to review by the Joint Standing Committee on Education and to confirmation by the Legislature. The Commissioner serves at the pleasure of the Governor. The State Board of Education consists of nine membes who are also appointed by the Governor subject to review by the Joint Standing Committee on Education and to confirmation by the Legislature. No person who earns a substantial portion of his/her income as a teacher or as an administrator of an educational institution, other than a college president, is eligible for appointment to the State Board of Education. The State Board acts in an advisory capacity to the Commissioner of Educational and Cultural Services.

It is the policy of the state to encourage the development of school administrative units of sufficient size to provide more equalized educational opportunities. The Commissioner of Educational and Cultural Services has the responsibility to group school administrative units into supervisory unions of 35 to 75 teachers unless otherwise impractical. Two or more municipalities may form a School Administrative District managed by an elected Board of School Directors. The Superintendent of the School Administrative District is selected by a majority vote of the Board of School Directors.

When "an administrative unit is so situated that it is not practical to combine with other units for the purpose of employing a superintendent," the commissioner may assign "the general agent for the schooling of children in unorganized townships, or any other agents of the commissioner who shall serve with "the same powers and shall perform the same service as superintendent of schools of towns." The commissioner will determine the frequency of the agent's visits to the district, and in case of dispute, the amount paid to the agent by the unit.

The superintendent shall be, "ex officio, the secretary of the school committee or board of school directors and of any building committee chosen by the administrative unit and shall perform such duties not enumerated as said committees or board shall direct."

He/she shall be responsible for the enforcement of "all regulations of the school committee or directors," and shall "direct and supervise the work of all teachers."

A longer extension may be contracted for by the parties. Teachers 65 and older may contract for one year periods only. (Just cause for dismissal or non-renewal are items for collective bargaining.)

"The teacher may request reasons." Either party may bring counsel, the hearing will be private except by mutual consent.

HEARING

"The right to terminate a contract, after due notice of 90 days, is reserved to the school committee or school directors when changes in local conditions warrant the elimination of the teaching position for which the contract was made."

APPOINTMENT

MICHIGAN

The Michigan Constitution vests the general supervision over all public education, except as to institutions of higher education, in a State Board of Education. The Board consists of eight members nominated by party conventions and elected at-large for terms of eight years. The Governor is an ex officio member of the State Board with no right to vote. The State Board appoints the Superintendent of Public Instruction and determines his/her term of office. The Superintendent is the chairman of the Board and the principal executive officer of the State Department of Education. The Superintendent does not exercise voting power on the Board.

Each school district, except one governed by local act, is organized as a primary school district or a school district of the fourth, third, second, or first class. A Primary District Board consists of three members elected at the school district's annual meeting. Districts of the fourth class have boards of education consisting of five members elected by the school electors of the district. The board of a third class district consists of seven members elected from the district. Each second class school district is under the jurisdiction of a board of education consisting of nine members elected from the district at large. A first class school district has a board composed of thirteen members, eight of whom are elected from the eight regions within the district and five of whom are elected at large. Within each region of a first class school district, there is a Regional Board consisting of five members who are nominated and elected by the registered school electors of each region. The boards of the districts, except those of primary districts (maintaining no grade above eighth), employ superintendents of schools. The Regional Boards of a first class school district may employ Superintendents from lists of candidates submitted by the First Class School District Board. Provision is made for reclassification and consolidation of districts.

Intermediate School Districts are comprised of constituent districts. An intermediate School District is under the supervision and control of an Intermediate School Board composed of five or seven elected members. Two or more adjoining Intermediate School Districts may consolidate and provision is made for the selection of the board members of such a consolidated district. The Intermediate School Board employs a Superintendent who implements the educational policies of the State and of the Intermediate School Board.

The task force shall consist of one member from each district within its boundaries, and each school board shall select its representative. Members shall hold their office until June 30, 1980. Vacancies shall be filled by the representative school boards.

§123.58

Full membership in an ECSU shall be limited to public school districts of the state but non-voting membership may be extended to non-public school units within the ECSU.

An ECSU unit shall be managed by a board of directors of 6 to 15 members, currently serving on participating district school boards. Members shall be elected by all school board members, each having one vote, and vacancies shall be filled by appointment by the board of directors.

The ECSU board of directors shall submit to the state board of education an annual plan which describes the objectives and procedures for their implementation of the ECSU.

The ECSU board may appoint special advisory committees, employ personnel pursuant to state certification standards, and may enter into contracts with boards of local school districts.

An advisory council, made up of superintendents, principals, teachers, and parents, shall be selected to give advice and counsel to the ECSU board.

Annually, the ECSU board shall submit a plan to its school districts and the state board of education, outlining programs and services suggested for implementation. These may range from curriculum development to in-service training.

MISSISSIPPI

The State Board of Education consists of the State Superintendent of Public Education, the Attorney General and the Secretary of State. The State Board adopts the course of study to be used in the public schools of the state and directs the State Department of Education. The State Department of Education is charged with the execution of all laws relating to administrative, supervisory and consultative services to the public schools. The administration, management and control of the Department is vested in the State Superintendent of Public Education. The State Superintendent is elected for a term of four years at the same time and in the same manner as the Governor is elected.

Each county in the state has a County Board of Education consisting of five elected members. Members are elected for terms of six years. The County Superintendent of Education for each county is elected for a term of four years at the same time and in the same manner as other county officers. He/she serves as executive secretary of the County Board of Education, but has no vote in the proceedings before the Board and no voice in the fixing of policies. Notwithstanding provision for the election of the County Superintendent, the electorate of a county may authorize the appointment of the Superintendent by the County Board of Education. Statutory provision is made for the appointment fo the County Superintendent by the County Board of Education in certain designated counties.

School districts are classified as Municipal Separate School Districts, Consolidated School Districts, or County-wide School Districts. Municipal separate school districts are governed by Boards of Trustees consisting of five members elected by the governing authorities of the municipalities. Consolidated districts are also governed by Boards of Trustees consisting of five members, but said members are elected by qualified electors of the district. County Boards of Education serve as Boards of Trustees of county-wide districts. In such a county-wide district, each attendance center is in the custody of a Board of Trustees consisting of five members appointed by the County Board of Education.

MISSOURI

The Department of Education includes the State Board of Education, the Division of Public Schools, the Division of Registration and Examination, and the agencies assigned to the Department. The State Board of Education consists of eight lay members appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. It appoints a Commissioner of Education as its chief administrative officer.

The school districts of the State are designated six-director, urban or metropolitan school districts. A Six-Director District is created in each first class county and is governed by a County Board of Education consisting of six members. The members of the school boards of the various school districts within the county elect the members of the County Board of Education. In counties of the second, third and fourth classes, the six members of the County Board of Education are elected by popular vote. In the event there is but one school district in a county, the Board of Education for that district serves as the County Board of Education. The County Superintendent of Public Schools is elected by the voters of each county. The office may be abolished where there are less than three operating school districts with a combined enrollment of fewer than 250 students.

A district containing all or the major portion of a city of 70,000 or more is deemed an urban school district. A Board of Directors consisting of six elected members governs an urban school district except, where the city contained therein has more than 300,000 inhabitants, the Board consists of nine members. Metropolitan school districts are those districts in cities not within a county. The supervision and government of public schools therein is vested in a Board of Education consisting of twelve elected members. The Board appoints a Superintendent of Schools.

MONTANA

The Montana Constitution mandates the establishment of a free public education system of elementary and secondary schools. The State Board of Education, composed of the Board of Regents of Higher Education and the Board of Public Education, is responsible for "long-range planning and for coordinating and evaluating policies and programs for the state's educational systems." The governor is an ex-officio member of this board.

The Board of Public Education, consisting of seven members appointed by the governor and confirmed by the senate, sets the policy for the school system. It meets quarterly and also includes as members the Governor, the Superintendent of Public Instruction and the Commissioner of Higher Education. The Board is also the governing board of vocational education.

The chief state school officer is the Superintendent of Public Instruction. She/he is an elected official and is responsible for the general supervision of the school system. The Superintendent is also charged with the responsibility to decide "matters of controversy" on appeal.

Each county elects a County Superintendent to supervise the schools in the county and assist in the trustees of any school district not employing a District Superintendent.

Schools are organized into elementary and high school districts. Each district is governed by an elected Board of Trustees and administered by a District Superintendent appointed by the trustees. Districts are classified by population, the classification being assigned by the County Superintendent. Two or more counties may organize into joint districts.

District Board of Trustees

Constitution

MONTANA CONSTITUTION, ART. X, §8

"School district trustees. The supervision and control of schools in each school district shall be vested in a board of trustees to be elected as provided by law."

Statutes

§75-5902 - 75-5906

The number of trustee positions varies according to a district's classification. In certain instances, districts may have additional positions. The county superintendent shall determine trustee nominating districts for choosing additional trustees. Trustees serve three-year terms, unless otherwise provided.

§75-5907

It is the legislature's intent that less than a "majority of the trustee positions of any district . . . be subject to election on the same . . . election day." Limits are therefore placed on the number of trustees to be elected from a district at the same time. Nevertheless, "it is recognized that the following circumstances" may cause a majority of trustee positions to be subject to election at the same time: creation or consolidation of elementary districts; establishment of additional trustee positions or filling of vacancies; "change of a district's classification."

§75-5924

Membership of the "trustees of a high school district operating a county high school" shall be composed of four members from the elementary district in which the high school is located and three from the "territory . . . outside of the elementary district where the county high school . . . is located."

§75-5927

BOARD OFFICERS

The trustees of a district constitute its "governing board" and chooses one member to be chairman. "The trustees shall employ . . . a clerk" who is not a board member. Trustees of a high school district appoint a secretary, who is a board member, instead of a clerk.

§75-5929

A joint board may "jointly employ a district superintendent . . .[and] teachers; . . . open a junior high school; . . . prescribe and administer joint administrative policy; and prorate all items of joint expense between the . . . districts." Any controversy over proration of costs "may . . . be appealed by the trustees of either district, to the superintendent of public instruction."

§75-5930

The trustees shall hold the following regular meetings: (1) an organization meeting; (2) a preliminary budget meeting, (3) monthly meetings in first class elementary districts; (4) quarterly in any other district. Special meetings may be called by the chairman or any two members of the trustees.

"A quorum . . . shall be a majority of the trustees' membership." All meetings shall be open to the public.

§75-5932

RULEMAKING

"The trustees . . . shall have the power and . . . duty to prescribe and enforce policies for the government of the district." They shall: (1) "adopt the policies required by this title;" (2) adopt policies to implement or administer the requirements of the general law, this title, policies or the board of education or the rules and regulations of the superintendent of public instruction.

"The trustees shall keep a . . . record of . . . adopted policies and . . . other acts," including wording of motions, votes, and expenditures. Copies of the minutes shall be available to the public.

§75-5933

The trustees shall have the following powers and duties: (1) "employ or dismiss a teacher, principal or other assistant . . .;' (2) govern the pupils of the district and administer attendance and tuition laws; (3) "call, conduct and certify" district elections; (4) "participate in the teachers retirement system . . .; (5) "participate in district boundary change actions; (6) "organize, open, close or acquire coalition status for" district schools; (7) adopt and administer the district's annual budget or an emergency budget; (8) "conduct the fiscal business of the district; (9) "establish the ANB, foundation program, permissive levy, additional levy, cash reserve and state impact aid amount for the district's general fund; (10) "establish . . . and finance the [district's] transportation program;" (11) issue and redeem the district's bonds; (12) establish, administer and budget funds for various educational programs; (13) "administer any interlocal co-operative agreement; (14) "hold . . . acquire, and dispose of the [district's] real and personal property . . .;" 15) operate district schools in accordance with school calendar laws; (16) "establish and maintain the instructional services of the schools . . .;" (17) "establish and maintain . . . school food services . . ."; (18) perform any other duties required by law; (19) require that newly-enrolled school children be immunized against communicable diseases, unless such immunization would seriously endanger the child or would violate the teachings of his/her religion.

The trustees shall have the power and duty: (1) to hire and dismiss administrative workers, clerks, teacher aides, maintenance people, school bus drivers, nurses, food service people and other necessary personnel; (2) to make reports as required by other school officials; (3) "to retain . . . a physician or registered nurse" to inspect . . . school or the general health of students; (4) each member of the trustees shall visit each school of the district at least once a year to check on "its management, conditions and needs."

§75-5935

The clerk shall attend all trustees meetings and keep a record of the proceedings. The clerk shall be "custodian of all documents, records and reports of the trustees." The clerk shall: "keep an . . . accounting record of all receipts and expenditures of the district . . .; [and] prepare the annual trustees' report."

REGULATIONS

§48-2.6(2)-S670

Under Montana school law, a local board of trustees is charged with the leadership, control and final decision-making powers of the school district. The board must be guided by a comprehensive philosophy determined by the board, district teachers, students, their parents and the general community. The district superintendent serves as executive officer of the board of trustees and serves as a link between the board and the school. The superintendent has direct responsibility to oversee the district's instructional program and is assisted in this task by administrative and supervisory staff. The standards recommend that administrative and supervisory personnel devote a major portion of their time to activities which promote the best educational techniques and approaches to meet the needs of each student.

NEBRASKA

The State Department of Education is composed of the State Board of Education and the Commissioner of Education. The State Department is given general supervisory and administrative powers over the school system of the State. The Commissioner of Education is the administrative head of the State Department and the executive officer of the State Board of Education. The State Board is composed of eight members elected from eight delineated districts. Each member serves a term of four years. The Board appoints the Commissioner of Education who serves as its secretary and at is pleasure.

School districts are classified as Class I (one maintaining only elementary grades), Class II (one having a population of one thousand inhabitants or less maintaining both elementary and high school grades), Class III (one having a population of 1,000 to 50,000 inhabitants maintaining both elementary and high school grades), Class VI (one having a population of 50,000 to 200,000 inhabitants maintaining both elementary and high school grades), Class V (one having a population of 200,000 or more inhabitants maintaining both elementary and high school grades), and Class VI (one maintaining only a high school). A County Superintendent is elected as other county officers in each organized county except where the population is 3,000 inhabitants or less or where the county is organized into a single school district under the direction of a single Board of Education. In the latter case a Superintendent of Schools is elected by that Board of Education. Where a new district is created, the County Reorganization Committee appoints a Board of Education to serve until the next annual school meeting or election. Successors are elected annually in the manner provided by law for board members of the class to which the district belongs.

BOARDS OF EDUCATION

STATUTES

§79-439-439.01

School boards and boards of education shall meet monthly; "special meetings may be called by the president or any two members." A majority of the members constitute a quorum. District board meetings are open to the public and subject to the provisions dealing with meetings of public bodies. A board member must be a registered voter of the district in which elected.

§79-440-79-441

The district board is responsible for maintenance of schoolhouses and shall "keep an accurate account of all expenses." The board has the "care and custody" of district property and is authorized to employ a superintendent, teacher, and other personnel.

§79-443

District boards "shall have the general care and upkeep of the schools, . . . provide . . . supplies and equipment," and place pupils in grades or courses of study in keeping with the educational program the board has established, "with the consent and advice of the Department of Education." Boards shall provide for pupils who enter during the school year and keep "a record of the advancement of all pupils in each branch of study." They shall make rules and regulations for the governance of pupils and to promote their health, regular attendance and educational progress.

RULEMAKING

The president presides at all district meetings and performs other duties required by law. The president is "entitled to vote on any issue." It is "the duty of the president to appear . . . on behalf of the district in all suits brought by or against the same."

The secretary serves as clerk to the district board and at all district meetings, records all proceedings, and maintains all records and reports relating to the office. The secretary is responsible for the annual district census, which includes the names of all children from birth to 21 years and of all taxpayers. The census "shall separately identify the mentally . . . and . . . physically handicapped children." The identification of mentally handicapped children is made by a licensed psychologist or physician. The census is forwarded to the county superintendent by the secretary.

§79-462 - 79-466

Vacancies occurring on the district board may be filled by appointment by the board or by a special election. Members appointed to fill a vacancy serve until the beginning of the next school year and those elected "serve for the remainder of the unexpired term." If any one office is left following the division of a district, the county superintendent shall fill the vacancies by appointment. No board member may be employed as a teacher in the same district; this does "not apply to a part-time county superintendent who by law serves on a board of education."

§79-501 - 503

Each school district shall hold an annual meeting and special meetings may be called by the board or by any board member, on the written request of at least 10% of the district's voters who voted in the last general election. Public notice must be given of all meetings.

§79-516.04; 79-516.06

A Class II district school board has six members and a Class III district board has 6 members, unless the board of education provides for a nine member board. The board elects a president and vice president from among its members, and a secretary who need not be a board member. If the secretary is a board member, an assistant secretary may be appointed, with "duties and compensation set by the board."

§79-601

Voters of a new Class I district shall elect a president, secretary and treasurer, to serve for staggered terms of three years.

Voters of a Class I district which is not within a city or village and has at least 150 children between ages 5 and 21 shall elect a school board to serve terms of 3 years; the board members "shall elect a president, a treasurer, and a secretary from their own number."

The voters of a Class I district of more than 150 persons in the school census may change to a six-member board by a vote of 55% at a meeting. The district may change back to a 3 member board in the same manner.

§79-706

The board of education of a Class II district has six members who serve staggered terms so that "three members shall be elected to each board at each election." Vacancies "shall be filled by the remaining members for the remainder of the term."

§79-803.03; 79-803.05; 79-803.11

The board of education of a Class III school district, more than half of which lies in a metropolitan city, shall consist of six members elected by the district's voters. In a Class III district outside the corporate limits of a city or village, or more than half of which is within a metropolitan city,

"the board of education shall elect one of its members, other than the secretary, as treasurer of the school district."

In a Class III district with a six member board of education the board "may by resolution . . . increase the number of members from six to nine." The board appoints members to fill the three vacancies created until the next election. A nine member board may by resolution decrease the number of members to six, in which case "three of the vacancies which would otherwise occur at the next election shall not be filled."

§79-805 — 79-807; 79-809

The board of a Class III district shall meet every other month and may hold other meetings. All meetings are open to the public and a summary of all proceedings shall be published. If the secretary of the board fails to publish a list of claims and the proceedings, he or she is guilty of a misdemeanor and may be removed from office.

Boards may "select their own officers and make their own rules and regulations . . . . No member of the board, except the secretary, shall accept . . . any compensation for services." The board may employ a treasurer for the district who receives a salary; if the board does not employ a treasurer, "the city treasurer of the city which is within such district . . . shall be ex officio treasurer of the school district."

§79-902; 79-906

The board of education of a Class IV district consists of six members elected for four-year terms. The board "shall hold two or more regular meetings each month . . .[and] special meetings . . . as circumstances may demand;" all meetings are open to the public.

§79-907 — 79-909

A Class IV district board may "select its own officers and make rules and regulations necessary to carry out the board's legal duties."

The board "may elect from outside its own members officers such as a superintendent of public instruction, an associate superintendent in charge of business affairs, a building supervisor, an architect," and other employees needed for the district's operation, fix their salaries and enter into contracts with them for up to 3 years. Elections for board officers, principals, teachers, janitors and "for filling vacancies on the board, shall be by ballot."

The secretary of the board must attend all meetings and keep a record of proceedings. The associate superintendent of business affairs is responsible for the "books and documents of the board" and other fiscal matters.

§79-1003 - 79-1003.03

The board of education of a Class V school district consists of 12 members, elected from districts of the county in which the school district is located and of which they are residents and taxpayers. Members serve four-year terms. Regular meetings are held twice a month, but special meetings may be called by the president of the board or a majority of board members. A majority of members constitutes a quorum; but a lesser number at a regular meeting, or a quorum at a special meeting, may "compel the attendance of absent members . . . under such penalties as each board shall see fit to prescribe." If a board member misses four consecutive meetings, "unless on account of sickness or by consent of the board," the position is thereby vacated. The board shall fill any vacancy that occurs, except when a vacancy occurs before a primary election and will leave "an unexpired term of more than one year following the next general election," in which case a successor shall be nominated and elected.

§79-1003.04; 79-1004-1004.05

A Class V district board shall "select its own officers, and make its rules and regulations.

BOARD OFFICERS

Board members shall elect a president and vice president from their members, and may also elect "from outside their own members" a superintendent of public schools, a secretary, and other officers necessary to the administration of the district, fix their salaries, and enter into contracts for up to three years. Election of board officers, teachers, and janitors is by ballot. The president presides at all board meetings and appoints "all Committees whose appointment is not otherwise provided for." The vice president serves in the absence or disability of the president. The secretary must attend all board meetings, keep a record of the proceedings, and be responsible for books and documents. "The treasurer of the county in which such city is located shall be ex officio treasurer of the board." The treasurer shall attend meetings as required, prepare a monthly financial statement, and perform other fiscal duties. It is "unlawful for any member of the board . . . to have any pecuniary interest" in any construction or service contract for schools "or to be in any manner connected with" supplying schools.

§79-1103

BOARD OFFICERS

Each Class VI school district shall have a six-member board of education. Members serve for four-year terms. The board elects from its members a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. Any vacancy is filled by the board "until the next statewide primary election, at which a successor shall be elected to serve for the unexpired term."

§79-1104 - 79-1105

A Class VI district board shall employ and fix the salary of an assistant secretary, who is not a board member. The board shall "file all reports required by the Department of Education."

§79-1111

The board of a Class VI district shall meet regularly once a month and special meetings may be called as necessary. "All meetings . . . shall be open to the public unless otherwise specially ordered." The secretary shall publish all claims and proceedings.

EDUCATIONAL SERVICE UNIT BOARD

STATUTES

§79-2201; 79-2201.01; 79-2203; 79-2204 -- 06; 79-2208

Seventeen educational service units are established in the state "to provide supplementary educational services to local school districts." They may purchase, lease or lease-purchase real estate.

Each educational service unit is governed by a board consisting of "one member from each county and four members at large, all of whom are residents of the educational service unit." The president of the school board in each county nominates persons for possible appointment and the Governor appoints the initial board. "Successors to the members initially appointed shall be elected for terms of four years." If a vacancy occurs on the board, the remaining members appoint a person from the same county to serve for the rest of the unexpired term. If a county is excluded from the educational service unit, the member representing or living in that county automatically loses his or her position; the remaining board members then appoint an eligible individual to the position for the unexpired term. Members receive no compensation for services. If a county has previously been excluded, it may be readmitted if the majority of the voters voting approve. A "joint school district located in two or more counties and in two or more educational service units shall be considered a part of the educational service unit in which" the majority of the joint district's school children live.

BOARD OFFICERS

The board shall name from its members a president, vice president and secretary and employ and fix the salary of a treasurer. It is the board's responsibility "to determine the participation of the educational service unit in providing supplementary educational services" on a yearly basis. If the educational service unit does provide supplementary services, the board "shall appoint and fix the compensation and duties of an administrator, who shall be . . . experienced in public school administration and . . . hold at least a standard administrative certificate," and on the administrator's advice, employ other staff as necessary.

APPOINTMENT

"The board shall determine the location within the educational service unit of its principal office" and may establish other offices as necessary. The board may purchase or lease office space and acquire personal property as necessary.

At the written request of the school boards, "the board of each educational service may . . . (1) provide . . . supplementary services, (2) plan and coordinate educational services within its geographical area whenever such services are offered on a cooperating basis between local school districts, and (3) contract for educational services" with any other board, district, or agency. If within the service units area there exists an approved, full-time health department offering health services and the educational service unit provides health services, it "shall first seek to contract for school health services with such department" for a mutually agreeable amount of compensation. If the service unit had a health service facility on December 25, 1969, it may continue to use it. "The educational service unit may contract with such health department to provide school health services" for any area of the service unit not served by the health department.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

The Department of Education consists of the State Board of Education, the Commissioner of Education and such other officials and employees as are authorized. The State Board of Education is composed of seven members appointed by the Governor and Council for terms of five years. The State Board has the same powers of management, supervision, and direction over the public schools of the State as the directors of a corporation have over its business. It is to employ a Commissioner of Education as its chief executive officer and secretary who serves an indefinite term, subject to removal by a majority of the Board.

Each town constitutes a single district. Districts may unite, upon petition of persons interested, to form special districts. Any district may have a school board consisting of three, five, seven, or nine members elected at annual district meetings. A district composed of two or more school districts is designated a cooperative school district. The establishment of cooperative school districts is encouraged to provide improved instruction. The Cooperative School Board has all the powers and duties of other school boards. The number, composition, method of election and terms of members of the Cooperative School Board are provided by the by-laws or articles of agreement of the cooperative school district.

The establishment of area schools is also encouraged by statute. An area school serves an authorized region of school districts or portions thereof. Any town, city, or special school district may vote to create an Area School Planning Committee to study the advisability of adopting an area school plan and to make recommendations concerning same. The area school is maintained and operated by the receiving district and its school board which is paid tuition by the sending district for each of its pupils attending.

The State Board delineates Supervisory Unions throughout the State which consist of one or more school districts. The Joint School Board of a Supervisory Union consists of three representatives from every school district maintaining at least one public school and one representative from each district maintaining no schools. It nominates a Superintendent who serves as the executive head of the public schools.

NEW MEXICO

The New Mexico Constitution mandates the establishment and maintenance of a uniform system of free public schools open to all children of school age in the state. It creates a State Department of Public Education and a State Board of Education and provides that the Board shall appoint the Superintendent of Public Instruction to direct the operation of the State Department of Public Education. The members of the State Board are elected at general elections, one member from each of the ten judicial districts, for a term of six years. The State Board is the governing authority of all public schools in the state.

Every public school is to be located within the geographical boundaries of a school district which exists, or is created or consolidated pursuant to statutory provisions. Each school district has an elected local school board composed of five members except where the local school board by resolution has provided for seven members. Twenty percent of the voters of the district may request that such a resolution be put before the electorate of the district. The local school board employs a Superintendent of Schools and fixes his/her salary.

NEW YORK

The Education Department is charged with the general management and supervision of all public schools of the State. The Board of Regents of the University of the State of New York heads the Department and appoints the Commissioner of Education who serves at the pleasure of the Board. Members are elected by the Legislature and their number is four more than the number of existing judicial districts of the State. There are no ex officio members. The Commissioner of Education serves as chief administrative officer of the Department.

School administration has been centralized in the State Education Department but actual control and operation of the schools is vested in the local districts. The districts have taxing power, elect trustees and school officials, employ teachers, maintain discipline, and supervise their own schools.

A school district is designated as either a union free school district, a central school district, a central high school district, a city school district, or an intermediate school district. A common (or city) school district has one or three trustees who are elected at annual meetings; the number is determined by the electors of the district. A District Superintendent may organize a new school district out of existing districts whenever the educational interests of the community require it and district superintendents of two or more adjoining districts may form a joint district out of adjoining portions of their respective districts. A district formed by the merger of two or more adjoining districts is designated a union free school district. Where a union free school district is established, three to nine trustees are elected by qualified voters present at district meetings. Common school districts and union free school districts may consolidate by vote of qualified electors.

The Commissioner may lay out central school districts which will become operative as provided by statute. Each central school district is managed by a board of education consisting of five, seven, or nine members elected at annual district meetings. Central high school districts are governed by boards of education consisting of one member from each common school district and at least two from each union free school district within the central high school district. Other school districts not included in the establishment of the original central high school district may join it upon a vote of the electors of such districts.

The Commissioner also is given the discretionary power to lay out intermediate school districts composed of contiguous school districts. The order must be approved by voters at a special meeting called for that purpose. An intermediate council composed of members from the various districts constituting the intermediate district elects the five members of the board of education of the intermediate district. The various boards of education may appoint a Superintendent to be executive officer of the respective Boards.

NORTH CAROLINA

In accordance with Article IX of the Constitution of North Carolina, the State General Assembly has provided for a general and uniform system of free public schools. It is the policy of the state to ensure every child a fair and full opportunity to reach his/her full potential including those children with special needs.

The State Board of Education is vested with the responsibility of the general supervision and administration of the public school system and consists of the Lieutenant Governor, the State Treasurer and eleven members appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the General Assembly in joint session. One member is appointed from each of the eight educational districts and three are appointed as members at large. The Superintendent of Public Instruction is elected and serves as the secretary and chief administrative officer of the State Board. He/she has the duty of organizing, subject to the approval of the State Board, a Department of Public Instruction.

Each county is classified a County Administrative Unit under the general supervision and control of a County Board of Education with a County Superintendent as the administrative officer. A City Administrative Unit may be within a county or adjacent parts of two or more contiguous counties. The city unit is under the control of a Board of Education with a City Superintendent as the administrative officer. County Boards consist of five members elected at-large by the voters of the county for terms of four years. Where there are multiple school administrative units within a county and the County Board of Education is not responsible for appointing the members of the Board of Education, only those voters within the County School Administrative Unit may vote for members of the County Board. The Boards of Education of County and City Administrative Units elect their respective Superintendents of Education for terms of either two or four years, the length of the term being within the discretion of the respective Boards. County and city superintendents serve as ex officio secretary to their respective boards.

NORTH DAKOTA

The Constitution of North Dakota requires the Legislative Assembly to make provision for the maintenance of a uniform system of free public schools open to all children and free from sectarian control. It provides that the Superintendent of Public Instruction be elected by the qualified electors of the state for a term of four years and that a Superintendent of Schools for each county be elected and may serve two or more counties as provided by law.

The State Board of Public School Education consists of the Superintendent of Public Instruction and one qualified elector from each judicial district within the state, to be appointed by the Governor with the consent of the Senate. The Superintendent serves as executive director and secretary of the Board.

Each school board of a public school district is composed of five elected members unless such district has increased the number by petition of the voters of the school district. Where a school district is composed of six or more sections of land having a city within its boundaries and its population does not exceed two thousand, at least two members of the school board must reside on farms outside the corporate limits of the city. The school board supervises the schools of the public school district and may appoint a School Superintendent. Where no Superintendent is appointed by the school board, the schools of the district are under the immediate supervision of the County Superintendent of Schools. Provision is made for reorganization of school districts, the plan for which is prepared and submitted by county committees to the State Board of Public School Education. The Superintendent of Public Instruction serves as the director of school district reorganization.

DISTRICT SCHOOL BOARD

REGULATIONS

Chapter I: V.A.

School board members are elected by the people of the district through authority granted by the state legislature.

The school board is a quasi-corporation created by law

Individual board members exercise their authority only when the board is actually in session and not individually outside of the meeting.

Chapter I: V.B.

RULEMAKING

School boards should adopt written rules, regulations, and policies and make them readily available for those interested.

Chapter I: V.C.

The following are recommended practices in school board procedure:

The school board establishes policy as a legislative and deliberative body.

The school board delegates administration of the school system to the superintendent who should have full responsibility for problems such as student conduct, administrative management of classes, and assignments of staff members. The superintendent nominates candidates for employment and recommends policies such as textbook selection, courses of study, materials, etc.: the board reviews and takes action on such nominations and recommendations.

The board should continually evaluate the educational program.

OPEN MEETINGS

The regular monthly meeting prescribed by law should be held. Meetings should be open to the public and only for rare occasions should be "executive" or "closed." Minutes of meetings should be made available to the public.

Chapter I: V.D.

The school board should have a public relations program designed to keep the public informed of school affairs and to interpret the school program to the public It should be continuous, truthful, balanced, and geared to the public it serves.

Having competent teachers in the classroom is a key to good public relations. A parent-teacher association is also a useful device.

The printed page and the other media are politically desirable elements in a public relations program; as are the superintendent's annual report, policy sheets, teacher handbooks; student publications; newspaper publicity; radio and television.

Another element in a public relations program is visitation by parents to the school for academic or other purposes. Such occasions might include: instructions to omit classes; "back to school nights"; parent conferences; commencements; school programs of a musical, dramatic, or athletic nature.

Regarding commencement, exercises marking the close of the high school year should be based on a clear conception of the objectives of such exercises rather than on tradition or on imitation of college commencements. If schools identify honor students it is very important that there be written policies made known at the beginning of every school year stating the manner and basis on which such honor students are selected. When determining rank in class it is recommended that all subjects required for graduation be used in the compilation, that high school students be allowed a pass-fail option for one elective unit per year, that the following system be used in computing rank:

A - 4 points per unit
B - 3 points per unit
C - 2 points per unit
D - 1 point per unit
F - 0 point per unit

The people of a local community elect school directors who, as a board, are charged with the formulation of policies for the organization and administration of the schools. One of the first duties of the school board of a high school district is the appointment of a superintendent of schools, who acts as a chief administrative officer of the board and who is directly responsible for organizing and administering the educational programs, nominating staff members and interpreting the policies of the board through specific administrative acts.

An administrator of a non-accredited high school is administrative head of a non-accredited school system including a secondary department. He/she is responsible to the school board and to the county superintendent. Such administrators with less than 8 semester hours of graduate work toward the administrative credential are directly under the supervision of the county administration.

OHIO

The Constitution of Ohio requires that there be a State Board of Education and the General Assembly has provided that it consist of one member to be elected from each of Ohio's congressional districts. The Superintendent of Public Instruction is appointed by the State Board and serves at its pleasure. He/she serves as secretary to the State Board and as chief administrative officer of the Department of Education. The State Board of Education has plenary authority in the supervision of public schools. The department of Education is the administrative unit and organization through which the State Board of Education implements its policies and the Superintendent of Public Instruction carries out his/her duties.

School districts are classified as city, local, exempted village, county, joint high school, and joint vocational school. Districts may reorganize by transfer of territory, consolidation, creation of new school districts, or dissolution, but must be strictly in accordance with State law. In a city school district with fewer than 50,000 inhabitants, the Board of Education consists of three to five members. In a city school district of 50,000 to 150,000 inhabitants, the Board of Education consists of two to seven members. In a city school district of more than 150,000 inhabitants, the Board consists of five to seven members. Each county local, and exempted village school district has a Board of Education consisting of five members. All Board of Education members are elected at large by the qualified voters of their districts. In city, exempted village, and county school districts the Superintendent of Schools is the chief executive and advisory officer. He/she is appointed by the respective Board of Education. Boards of Education otherwise classified have no authority to employ superintendents so the supervision of schools within those districts is the responsibility of a County Superintendent elected by the County Board of Education.

PENNSYLVANIA

The Constitution of Pennsylvania requires the General Assembly to maintain and support a thorough and efficient system of public education for all children above the age of six. To this end, the General Assembly has established the procedures and provided for the standards and criteria to be used by School Directors, District Administrators, County Boards of School Directors, and County Administrators in determining appropriate administrative units to be created to carry out the responsibility. Only where local officials fail to act or act arbitrarily will the Commonwealth intervene to insure compliance with the law. The State Board of Education implements evaluation studies and the Department of Public Instruction approves district organization.

In each school district classified first class or first class A, the Board of Public Education consists of fifteen school directors appointed by the judges of the courts of common pleas for terms of six years.[1] In each school district of the second, third, and fourth class, there is a board of nine school directors elected at large for terms of six years.[2] Each board of school directors may adopt rules and regulations for its government and control and may, with the approval of the Department of Public Instruction, establish joint facilities with other Boards of School Directors. Any joint school or department established must be accompanied by a written agreement. The Board of Directors of every district elects its District Superintendent and Assistant Superintendents.

Each school district is assigned to an Intermediate Unit. The Board of Directors of each Intermediate Unit is composed of thirteen members chosen from among members of the Boards of School Directors of the constituent school districts. It may appoint an Executive Director to administer its program of services. Each Intermediate Unit has an Intermediate Unit Council composed of all chief school administrators within the unit to advise the Executive Director.

[1]Provision is also made for the composition of the Board of Public Education of a district of the first class A to vary between seven and fifteen members, elected for terms of four years, following the election of the Board in accordance with section 302.1(a) of the Public School Code of 1949.

[2]Provision is also made for the Board of School Directors of a school district of the fourth class to consist of five members elected at large for terms of six years.

Such plan for the division of the school district shall be submitted for approval to the court of quarter sessions and if approved, the clerk shall certify the regional boundaries contained therein to the county board of elections. Where a three region plan is approved, three school directors who reside in each region shall be elected or appointed. Where a nine region plan is approved, one school director who resides in each region shall be elected or appointed. If a newly established school district is situated in two or more counties, the plan for regional representation shall be submitted for approval to the court of quarter sessions of the county in which the largest part in area of the land affected is situated, which shall have exclusive jurisdiction over the matter.

All school directors of the component school districts forming an administrative unit composed of two or more school districts approved by the State Board of Education to be established as a school district shall serve out the terms of office for which they were elected. On or before February 15 immediately preceding the date of establishment, incumbent school directors of the component school districts shall be called into convention by the county superintendent of schools and shall select by majority vote an interim operating committee composed of nine incumbent school directors. In selecting the interim operating committee, the principle of proportionate representation should be taken into consideration. The decision of the convention shall be final. If an incumbent director is selected for a term on the interim operating committee which would expire later than the term for which he/she was elected as a school director, he/she shall serve only until the end of the term for which he/she was elected as a school director.

The members of the interim operating committee shall serve as the board of school directors on and after the date of establishment. The duties of the committee are to adopt a budget, levy and assess taxes and to perform all functions necessary to enable the proposed school district to function properly prior to the date of its establishment. In the case of an administrative unit, the directors then in office in each component school district shall, until the end of their respective terms, be directors of the newly formed school district. Vacancies occurring in such incumbent positions shall not be filled.

D. SELECTION AND RECRUITMENT OF EDUCATIONAL PERSONNEL

1-2 SUPERINTENDENTS (BE, 7/11/68)

The State Board believes that each school district should have the services of the best possible executive and administrative officers. For this reason, the Board has established the following regulations.

Every school committee shall before commencing recruitment and selection of a superintendent of schools shall devise and submit to the Commissioner of Education for approval or rejection, according to guidelines promulgated by the Commissioner, a plan for such recruitment and selection. SOUTH CAROLINA

The State Board of Education is composed of one member from each judicial circuit who is elected by the legislative delegation of that judicial circuit to serve for a term of four years. No member may succeed himself/herself except by unanimous consent of the legislative delegation from the circuit. The State Superintendent of Education serves as secretary and administrative officer of the Board. He/she is elected at each general election in the same manner as other state officials. It is his/her duty to organize, staff and administer a State Department of Education to administer policies and procedures of the State Board of Education.

The Committee for Continuous Study of the Educational System is composed of nine members: the chairperson of the Senate Education Committee, the chairperson of the House Education and Public Works Committee, two persons appointed from the membership of the Senate by the President of that body, two appointed from the House of Representatives by the Speaker of the House, and three nonlegislative members appointed by the Governor. The Committee is to make a continuous study of the overall educational program of the state and report its findings to the General Assembly.

Each county of the state has a County Board of Education composed of seven members; six of whom are appointed by the Governor upon recommendation by the Senator and at least one-half of the Representatives from the county. Where the County Superintendent of Education is elected, he/she serves as an ex officio member of the county board. Where he/she is not elected, the seventh board member is appointed in the same manner as the other six.

Each school district is under the management and control of a Board of Trustees appointed by the County Board of Education. School districts of the various counties may not be altered or divided except by act of the General Assembly or by authorization of the County Boards of Education when: (1) the Senate and entire house legislative delegation has given written permission; (2) at least four-fifth of the qualified electors of each school district involved has petitioned for the alteration; or (3) at least one-third of the qualified electors has petitioned for consolidation and a majority of qualified electors of each school district approves the consolidation. In addition, a County Board of Education may consolidate schools and school districts whenever, in its judgment, such consolidation would be in the best interest of education in the county.

CONSTITUTION

SOUTH CAROLINA CONSTITUTION, ART. XI, §1

"There shall be a State Board of Education composed of one member from each of the judicial circuits of the state." Members shall be elected by the legislative delegations of the counties within the circuit and one member shall be appointed by the Governor.

APPOINTM

STATUTES

§59-1-40

The state system of public education shall consist of those schools, institutions agencies and services that the Board of Education shall prescribe, or those that are authorized by law.

§59-5-40

The board shall meet upon the request of the chairman or a majority of members.

§59-5-60

The state board has the power to: adopt policies and regulations for the public schools, approve the education budget, "prescribe and enforce rules for examination and certification of teachers," prescribe and enforce curriculum and textbook use, appoint committees to assist the board in carrying out its functions, and other duties assigned to it by law or which it finds necessary to carry out its purpose. RULEMAKING

§59-5-80

The State Education Television Commission, the state Advisory Committee for Technical Training and the South Carolina Opportunity School shall be under the supervision of the State Board of Education. The State Board shall study the feasibility of coordinating these agencies.

REGULATIONS

"The State Board of Education is enjoined by State Statute to carry out certain responsibilities and be responsible for specific duties in the State's program of public education." The Board is empowered to adopt policies, enact regulations and establish general rules for carrying RULEMAKING out the duties placed upon it or the South Carolina State Department of Education by the General Assembly; to review periodically the educational needs of the State, evaluate the outcomes being achieved in the educational program, and promote plans for meeting these needs; to adopt standards for the accreditation of elementary and secondary schools as well as programs for teacher education offered by institutions of higher education and to establish policies governing the approval of teacher education programs; and to adopt minimum standards for any phase of education considered necessary to aid in providing adequate educational opportunities and facilities.

The Board of Education is charged with a tremendous responsibility for planning, regulating, upholding and improving the State's system of primary and secondary education.

The basic elements of the Board's educational philosophy are:

(1) The Board's primary role is to represent the entire State as the lay body responsible for the State's system of public elementary and secondary education. Its role, it believes, can only be carried out effectively when it acts as the policy body designed to regulate, evaluate, upgrade and control the statewide educational system. The Board will not carry out administrative functions, which are the province of the State Superintendent and the State Department of Education. The principle of local control of public education is recognized, but since the Board believes that effective local control means full responsibility and accountability to the electorate, the Board's efforts will be channeled through the Superintendent, and in turn, through local boards of education.

(2) The Board looks upon the Superintendent of Education as its chief administrative officer with responsibility for administering the State's system of public elementary and secondary education and the State Department of Education. The Superintendent is looked on as the primary educational leader for evaluating public education, developing plans for its improvement for Board consideration, providing aid to local school districts to assist in educational improvements, and developing short and long-range plans for educational advancement in the State. The Superintendent's responsibility is also to carry out the financial plan approved by the Board.

(3) The Board believes that there should be an annual evaluation of educational quality in each school district to determine educational shortcomings as the first step in developing improvements. The major resources of the State Department of Education should be concerned with the evaluation process, and with the resulting aid to local school districts who most need improvement in achieving it. The basic yearly objectives and work plans of the Department should be structured upon the findings secured from the evalution process.

(4) A minimum quality of education should be set. There should be a system of State financial aid to local school districts which recognizes local financial ability and also encourages maximum local effort compatible with resources.

(5) The State should have a continuous program for upgrading public education; this means a continuous program for upgrading teaching ability and curriculum improvement. Continuous upgrading of education requires careful planning, prudent use of the State's financial resources and continuous leadership in means of improvement; therefore, a five year plan for educational improvement which should be updated each year should be developed by the Superintendent and approved by the Board after open hearings on it. This plan should constitute the board's primary means of communicating its programs and financial costs to the public and the Legislature. Superior teachers who demonstrate superior teaching and aid in training new teachers should be recognized and rewarded accordingly.

(6) Each local school district should have at least a one-year plan for educational improvement. This plan should be a requisite for State aid and Federal project money and should be developed after a careful evaluation of primary local needs for improvement. A Board plan for improvement should be developed each year after assessments of its achievements and shortcomings. Local boards should be aided in this effort by Department of Education assistance when needed, and also by a Departmental development of a set of criteria of local school board effectiveness.

(7) A number of local school districts are of an uneconomic size for carrying a quality level of education and should be consolidated with neighboring districts. The Board intends to study these districts and to make consolidation recommendations, where pertinent. Inquiries for assistance in district consolidation prior to the time the Board adopts policies governing consolidation are invited.

(8) The State must have a coordinated plan for academic, vocational and technical education to avoid waste of resources and permit the availability of educational opportunity to all public school students. Policies governing the areas of responsibility of each form of education shall be adopted and the appropriate means of carrying out each shall be designated.

(9) Accreditation of all public and private elementary and secondary schools is required. Such accreditation should be an evaluation of the resources of each school and any school which fails to meet accreditation requirements should be given a probationary period in which to meet the requirements. A kindergarten grade must exist and is required in districts for all beginning pupils by 1978.

(10) There must be a system of personal, academic and vocational counseling of pupils in the public school system.

(11) A well developed system of educational experimentation and research is essential to full use of the State's resources toward educational improvement. Primary guidance and coordination should come from the Superintendent and the State Department of Education, but local school districts must initiate or participate in this research if it is to be successful. The State Department should provide the computer resource for research projects, with this resource available to local school districts and should coordinate a statewide system of data processing.

(12) The State Board, the focal point for broad educational leadership, must have the full support and resources of the Superintendent and the State Department. The Board, after advice and counsel from all sources, will set rules, regulations and policies for carrying out its statutory mandate. All interested citizens are invited to participate.

TEXAS

The Central Education Agency is comprised of the State Board of Education, the State Board for Vocational Education, the State Commissioner of Education, and the State Department of Education. The Central Education Agency exercises general control over the state public education system and has exclusive jurisdiction over the Texas School for the Deaf.

The State Board of Education is composed of one member elected from each congressional district of the state at biennial general elections. The State Board of Education is the policy-forming and planning body for public schools of the state and also serves as the State Board for Vocational Education. The board appoints, with the consent of the Senate, the State Commissioner of Education for terms for four years. The Commissioner serves as the executive officer through whom the Board carries out its policies and enforces its rules and regulations.

The State Department of Education constitutes the professional, technical, and clerical staff of the Central Education Agency. It is organized into divisions established by the Commissioner, who appoints each division chief.

The general management and control of the school system of each county is vested in a Board of County School Trustees or a County Board of Education. The board is composed of five members, one elected from each of the four commissioners precints and one elected at large. In counties of more than 350,000 inhabitants, the Board consists of seven members, three of whom are elected at large and one elected from each commissioner's precinct. RULEMAKING

APPEAL

This series concerns itself with hearings before local governing boards of trustees and provides for the adoption of written procedures for orderly hearings and appeals by aggrieved parties concerning such items as:

1) administrative actions or problems of school districts;

2) appeals involving teacher contracts only in those school districts which have adopted the provisions of the probationary or continuing contract laws;

3) original administrative actions under the jurisdiction of the county superintendent; and

4) original administrative actions under the jurisdiction by the county school trustees.

"For all common school districts, rural high school districts, and independent school districts with fewer than 500 scholastics, the proper route of appeal . . . begins with the district board of trustees and continues on through to the state board of education and a court of competent jurisdiction. For all independent school districts with 500 or more scholastics the route is primarily the same, but of a more simplistic nature, with the appeal going directly from the district board of trustees to the commissioners, then to the state board of education and a court of competent jurisdiction; bypassing the county superintendent, the county school trustees, etc.

§2311.1-.2

This policy provides for the requirements of hearings and appeals procedure, and includes filing procedure and testimony relevant to such proceedings.

§2311.3

This provision provides for the procedural requirements for record of appeal. It includes such things as written requests, orders, decisions and copies of all petitions.

"Policies may be adopted or amended under the following conditions: Each member of the Board shall be furnished a copy of a proposed new policy or a proposed amendment in the preliminary and official Agendas for the meeting at which it is to be considered and after proper notice has been given in the Texas Register. If a substantial revision as determined by a Board committee is to be considered for the proposed amendment other than how it was printed in the Agenda, consideration for final action by the Board shlal not be prior to the succeeding Board meeting. Proposed State Board of Education policies or amendments to policies are listed in the Agendas as 'Adoption of Policy' or 'Amendment to Policy'. An affirmative vote by a majority of the Board membership is required for the adoption of new policy or policy amendment. A new or amended policy shall be effective 20 days after it appears as passed by the Board in the Texas Register or on a later date otherwise specified.

The State Board may adopt without prior notice or hearing an emergency policy. The policy would be in effect for 120 days unless renewed for an additional 60 days. Immediately after adoption, the Commissioner will file with the Secretary of State for publication the policy and a written reason for its adoption which will cite the danger to the public health, safety, or welfare affecting the public schools of the State. The emergency policy will then be placed with appropriate notice on an agenda of the State Board of Education for adoption as a permanent policy.

If time does not allow the operation of Policy 9301.3, the Commissioner after finding that there is an "imminent peril" to the public health, safety, or welfare affecting the public schools of the State may without prior notice or hearing adopt, promulgate and cause to be enforced an emergency rule as if it were a policy or an administrative procedure. The emergency rule and the Commissioner's written reasons for its adoption shall be filed with the Secretary of State for publication. It will timely be placed before the State Board of Education with appropriate notice for their consideration as a possible addition to the policies and/or administrative procedures of the State Board.

Any interested person may petition for the adoption or amendment of a policy. A form for petitions may be secured from the Associate Commissioner for Policies and Services and the petition shall be submitted to him[her]. In consultation with the persons in the Texas Education Agency who are responsible for the area with which the rule is concerned, the Commissioner of Education shall evaluate the merits of the proposal to determine whether to initiate policymaking proceedings or to deny the petition. Within 60 days after submission of a petition, the petition shall either be denied in writing, with reasons for the denial stated, or policy making proceedings shall be initiated.

An administrative procedure is the method by which a policy of the State Board of Education is administratively implemented.

Administrative procedures are determined and revised by the Commissioner of Education and must be correlated with the policies of the Board. All administrative procedures shall be submitted to the Board for the Board's information and review. The State Board of Education approves administrative procedures when (1) required by law, (2) required by Board policy, or (3) requested by the Commissioner of Education.

State plans for the Texas Education Agency shall be developed in accordance with the State Board of Education policies and administrative procedures."

However, notice in the agenda shall read "Adoption of State plan" or "Change in State Plan."

When appropriate request is received by the State Board of Education at its meeting or by the State Commissioner of Education, the Board may direct a hearing to be held on a board policy, an administrative procedure, or a state plan.

Following a hearing by the Commissioner of Education, he[she] shall provide the Board with information obtained from the hearing which would aid the Board in actions regarding proposed policies, administrative procedures, or state plans.

"The only process by which local education agencies may secure federal funds are funds allocated by formula, by project proposal, or by the United State Office of Education or other federal agency.

Included within this series is a list of procedure for the preparation of the Texas Education Agency operating budget, which include the need for a budget in accordance with "the amounts appropriated in general appropriations act," as allotment for expenses eligible for payment in whole or in part from federal and special funds, as well as other such procedures.

Also described are the responsibilities of the Commissioner of Education in the preparation of the operating budget in which is shown for each division the amount budgeted for the previous year, as well as an estimate for the next year.

"The Commissioner. . .is authorized to transfer funds between divisions and between expense classifications within divisions. . ." given certain provisions. It is the Commissioners duty to report on the status of all funds at each regular meeting of the State Board of Education.

§1105; 1106

"The Texas Education Agency is herein required to review policies and practices in pursuit of compliance with the Civil Rights Act of 1964 which includes:

(1) "acceptance policies on student transfers from other school districts;

REVIEW

(2) operation of school bus routes or runs on a non-segregated basis;

(3) non-discrimination in extracurricular activities and the use of school facilities;

(4) non-discriminitory practices in the hiring, assigning, . . . etc. of faculty and staff members who work with children;

(5) enrollment and assignment of students without discrimination on the ground of race, color or national origin;

(6) non-discriminatory practices relating to the use of a student's first language; and

(7) evidence of published procedures for hearing complaints and grievances."

The Agency is also held responsible for checking complaints of discrimination, and where a violation is found the findings are reported to the Office for Civil Rights, Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

"It is for the agency to utilize all media in reporting both the progress and the problems in public education in Texas, with the Office of Planning in the Office of the Commissioner of Education being responsible for coordinating the program of communication. This responsibility includes coordinating the release of information to news media. Procedures and regulations for the release . . . are as follows:

(1) To aid in channeling educational information of statewide and general interest through various communication media, news releases are made through the Division of Dissemination in the Office of Planning. Exceptions are those releases pertaining to youth organization activities which traditionally have been produced by the Department of Occupational Education and Technology. The Office of Planning assists staff in preparing these particular types of releases when requested.

(2) Professional staff are to answer reporters' questions. These questions may come directly from the news media on the reporter's initiative or as a result of the reporter's being referred to a particular staff member by the Division of Dissemination. In the first case, to ensure coordination, the Division of Dissemination is informed of the queries and the answers. In the second case, a member of the Division of Dissemination staff, if possible, alerts the staff member that the information will be requested.

(3) Television videotapes and films and radio tapes may originate in the Division of Dissemination or in another of the Agency offices or divisions. In the second case, the Division of Dissemination radio-television-film consultant works closely with staff members of the department concerned to assure maximum production quality.

(4) Scheduling of conferences and workshops planned by any Agency department is coordinated by the Office of Planning for two reasons: (1) avoid scheduling conflicts among staff members, and (2) make information needed for public information readily available.

The Continuing Committee on Communications and Publications assists in developing policies and procedures to strengthen internal and external communication. This committee serves primarily as a planning body for providing public information and coordinating the development, scheduling, distribution, and evaluation of major publications."

VERMONT

The State Board of Education consists of seven members appointed by the Governor with the advice and consent of the Senate. In making these appointments, the Governor is to give consideration to the adequate representation of all sections of the state. A member is appointed for a term of six years and may not succeed himself/herself.

The state board has supervision over and management of the Department of Education and the public school system. The Board appoints, subject to the approval of the Governor, its chief executive officer and secretary, the Commissioner of Education. He/she is appointed for an indefinite term and may be removed by a majority of the Board.

A town constitutes a school district. Where one contains an incorporated school district, the town school district consists of only that part not within the incorporated school district. The annual town meeting is also the annual town school district meeting. One school Board member is elected at each annual town school district meeting to serve a term of three years. The school board consists of three Directors unless the electorate at an annual special town school district meeting has voted to have additional directors. Statutory provision limits the number of additional directors to two. Provision is made for merger of school districts, for joint school boards to control joint, contract, or consolidated schools, and for the creation of union school districts.

The State Board is responsible for the grouping of several school districts or the redistricting of Supervisory Unions into Supervisory Unions of approximately fifty teachers each where it is convenient and efficient, though a town or city employing forty or more teachers may remain a district. The School Directors of the school district in a Supervisory Union determine the number of Directors of the Supervisory Union Board. The directors serve terms of one year and vacancies are filled by appointment by the school board of the district which was represented by the vacating director. Supervisory Unions or administrative units not within a Supervisory Union may enter into agreements to share joint programs, services, facilities, and professional and other staff. The members of the school boards of the school districts comprising the Supervisory Union, with the advice of the Commissioner, select a Union Superintendent. He/she is the chief executive officer for each School Board he/she serves and his/her time and salary are divided among the school districts of the Supervisory Union in proportion to the number of teachers in each district or town.

VIRGINIA

The Constitution of Virginia mandates that the General Assembly provide for a system of free public elementary and secondary schools for all children of school age. It places the general supervision of the school system in a Board of Education of nine members, appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the General Assembly. The Superintendent of Public Instruction is to be an experienced educator, appointed by the Governor and subject to confirmation by the General Assembly. The supervision of schools in each school division if vested in a school board.

The Virginia Public School Authority is an agency authorized to purchase bonds to finance capital projects for public schools. It is headed by the Board of Commissioners which consists of the State Treasurer, State Comptroller, the Superintendent of Public Instruction, and five members appointed by the Governor, subject to confirmation by the General Assembly.

Each magisterial district constitutes a separate school district for the purpose of representation. For all other school purposes, the county is the designated unit and the school affairs of each county are to be managed as if the county constituted one school district. The school boards of the respective cities may prescribe the number and boundaries of the school districts. Where a city is not divided into wards, it constitutes a single school district; where one is so divided, each ward constitutes a school district. Each county has a School Trustee Electoral Board composed of three members appointed by the Circuit Court of the county. The School Trustee Electoral Board appoints the County School Board which consists of the same number of members from each district in the county as there are members of the Board of Supervisors of each district. No more than two other members from the county-at-large may be appointed. A referendum may abolish the School Trustee Electoral Board and permit the governing body of the county to appoint the School Board consisting of a number equal to the number of its magisterial districts. The council of each city or town appoints three trustees for each school district in its city or town. Statute provides that no school board is to be elected by popular vote in and for any county or city.

The school board of each school division may appoint a Division Superintendent of Schools who is to be selected from the list of eligibles certified by the State Board. More than one division may appoint the same person to the office. In the event that the local school board fails to appoint a Division Superintendent, the State Board will appoint one.

WASHINGTON

The State Board of Education is comprised of two members from each congressional district of the State, elected by the members of the respective Boards of Directors of those school districts for terms of six years. The Superintendent of Public Instruction is the ex officio president and chief officer and appoints a non-member to serve as ex officio secretary to the Board. The Superintendent may vote only when no majority opinion has been reached among the Board members present. The Superintendent of Public Instruction is elected in the manner of other state officers and holds office for a term of four years.

The State Board has the duty, among others, of prescribing rules and regulations governing the classification of school districts. It is to give consideration to the size, population, topography and climate of a proposed educational service district. In each educational service district there is an Educational Service District Board consisting of seven members elected by the votes of each of the district's seven units.

Any Educational Service District Board may, by resolution, increase the board member size to nine members. The term of office for each board member is four years. Every Educational Service District Board is to employ an Educational Service District Superintendent for a contractual term not to exceed four years. He/she is to serve as chief executive officer of the Educational Service District and Secretary of the Educational Service District Board.

WEST VIRGINIA

The West Virginia Board of Education consists of eleven members. The State Superintendent of Schools and the Chancellor of the Board of Regents both serve as non-voting, ex officio members. The other nine members are appointed by the Governor, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, for overlapping terms of nine years. At least two, but not more than three, members are to be appointed from each congressional district. The State Board of Education has general direction and control of the education of teachers in the state and makes rules and regulations for the accreditation, classification and standardization of all schools in the state, except institutions of higher education. It may establish multi-county Regional Educational Service Agencies to provide educational services to the county school systems. It appoints the State Superintendent of Schools who serves as its chief executive officer.

The territory of a county constitutes one school district. Each county school district is under the supervision and control of a County Board of Education which is composed of five members elected by the voters of the respective county. The boards may establish, close, or consolidate schools within their respective counties. The County Board elects a County Superintendent of Schools to serve for a term of one to four years. The Superintendent serves as chief executive officer of the Board and is its secretary.

The State Superintendent of Public Instruction is responsible for the general supervision of public schools in the State and the certification of public and private school teachers. The Department of Public Instruction implements the state's educational programs and provides assistance to school officers in carrying out its directives.

Co-operative Educational Service Agencies are designed to be liaisons between the State and local school districts and to serve educational needs in all areas of Wisconsin. Each agency is governed by a Board of Control composed of members of School Boards of districts within the agency. The Board of Control appoints an Agency School Committee composed of seven residents of the territory within the Agency who are not members or employees of a School Board or of the Agency. The Committee evaluates the existing educational system of the Agency and may formulate a plan to strengthen the administrative districts of the Agency. Provision is made for school district reorganization.

School districts are designated common, union high school, city, or unified. The number of members of their respective school boards and the manner in which they are elected or appointed is provided by statute. The school board of any district may employ a School District Administrator to have general supervision and management of the professional work of the schools and the promotion of students.

CURRICULUM PLAN 1975-1981

Utah State Course of Study Committee and Textbook Commission 14 pages 1976

This publication describes the curriculum development process of the Utah State Board of Education and outlines the six-year curriculum development plan for the agency.

Eight basic goals and objectives are outlined, upon which the curriculum plan is based. These goals are: intellectual maturity, ethical-moral-spiritual maturity, emotional maturity, social maturity, physical maturity, environmental maturity, aesthetic maturity, productive maturity.

To implement these goals, a curriculum development model has been developed which outlines a step-by-step procedure for utilizing course content as a vehicle for acquiring the maturities reflected in the goals.

The policy guide, in addition to setting out these goals and objectives, identifies a six-year cycle of curriculum development to implement the goals.

Availability and Approval of Courses. Public schools or school systems "shall provide each eligible student . . . with the opportunity to complete" an approved driver education course "prior to the student's initial licensing age." Driver education courses in non-public schools must also be approved by the State Department of Education.

"Each public school system (local education agency) shall establish and maintain State Department of Education-approved driver education courses." A non-public school offering such a course must either offer an approved course on its own or in conjunction with a public school, or arrange to have its students attend the course at a public school.

Approval status for courses must be maintained on a yearly basis upon application to the Driver Education Office of the State Department of Education and approval by the State Superintendent of Schools.

Eligibility of student. "Any 15,16, or 17-year old youth who meets . . . mental and physical standards . . . for the issuance of a Maryland driver's license, and who is a Maryland resident or is a currently, or was in the previous term, enrolled . . . in a Maryland public or non-public school, may enroll in" an approved driver education course. If a student has not previously participated in an approved course but the other conditions for "tuition-free" participation do not apply, he or she "may enroll in a "partial fee" course. If none of these conditions apply, a person may enroll by paying the complete fee.

In order to be approved by the State Department of Education, "a program (workshop) for the preparation of driver education laboratory instructors" must meet these requirements. HEALTH EDUCATION

"The New Hampshire General Court, prescribed mandatory studies in health education, i.e. physiology and hygiene. Over the past century, this statute has been modified as the needs of the times have changed. Most recently, the 1973 General Court added instruction in venereal disease as a curriculum requirement for New Hampshire schools.

VENEREAL DISEASE

In response to these educational requirements, the State Board of Education approved the following guidelines for New Hampshire schools:

Policy Statement Relating to a Comprehensive Health Education Program

Health Education programs for boys and girls in New Hampshire are a vital concern of parents, school personnel, and the citizens of every community. Health education, and education about the schools, as well as the church and every community agency, must reinforce and supplement the work of the parent. The characteristics and pressures of modern society are such that they dictate a coordinated community effort to develop comprehensive health programs that can help our young people to happier, healthier living.

The State Board and the State Department of Education in their roles of responsibility for programs of basic education in the school, recommend the development of comprehensive health programs by qualified teachers who have been trained in health education. Each school district in the State is encouraged to study its health education needs and develop programs which are consistent with these needs.

The major purpose of any comprehensive health education program would be the development of attitudes and behaviors which will promote physical and mental health. Nutrition, disease prevention, education concerning alcohol, drugs and tobacco, and family living, including sex education, are a few of the essential elements of an effective health program. An effort should be made to develop basic consumer knowledge and attitudes necessary for wise evaluation of buying practices to meet these personal needs.

In order for the community to understand and accept the school's assistance in health education, the following general guidelines are suggested.

1. Each school district should encourage the development of a public information program. Such a program represents an important effort to involve parents and the community in planning and understanding school health programs.

2. In the development stages, local school personnel, in cooperation with an advisory group, should review and evaluate, then recommend, only those instructional materials which have community acceptance. Whenever instructional materials seem to be controversial, they should be reviewed carefully to insure the materials will coincide with community standards and expectations, as well as meet the needs of students.

3. Districts should outline in a straight-forward manner what the school plans to include in the area of health education and use a broadly-based citizens' committee to advise on these programs. The needs and interests of students should be primary factors in the committee discussions. The decision to initiate a comprehensive health program is the responsibility of the local school board. A school district should provide adequate resources to assure trained personnel, and acceptable materials.

4. Instruction should be given by qualified instructors, specifically those who have shown an apptitude (sic) for working with young people, have received special preparation, and are themselves mature individuals and sensitive to community mores.

5. The student should receive instruction which is appropriate for his/her age and maturity level.

6. School personnel should adopt an 'open door' policy so that the students are encouraged to seek help with school and personal problems when needed.

Definition of Comprehensive Health Education and Services

The major purpose of any comprehensive health education program would be the development of attitudes and behaviors which will promote physical and mental health. This definition sets as a goal for each New Hampshire Supervisory Union or district the integration of all community and school health services into a comprehensive program(s) which provides useful services to meet the physical and mental needs of children, youth, and their families. Educational components of this coordinated effort include guidance and counseling, nursing health services, health and physical education, home economics, food and nutrition, and other related disciplines and activities.

Coordination of Effort

As school districts attempt to discharge their legislated responsibilities for health education and services, there is a need for cooperation and communication within the school and between the school and community. The Comprehensive Health Education and Services policy of the State Board of Education points out the essential relationship between the school and community in developing an effective program and the central role that the school, church, and community have in supporting and reinforcing the responsibility of the family. To facilitate the development of this coordinated effort, the State Board of Education, through its certification authority, establishes provisions for certifying the position of Coordinator of Comprehensive Health Education and Services."
